

Child Policy Symposium

Connecting Research, Policy & Practice to Improve Child Well-Being

Friday, September 30, 2005

8:30 a.m. - 3 :30 p.m.

Clayton College and State University

Harry S. Downs Center for Continuing Education

This Symposium will address the needs of the whole child, from birth to adolescence, and focus on the broad-range of issues that affect the healthy development and well-being of children.

More than 40 researchers and practitioners from across Georgia will convene at the Child Policy Symposium to illuminate and link current research, best practices, and policies, and identify areas where more or different information is needed.

The day-long conference will highlight the research and best practices from a variety of dimensions including, but not limited to, health, school readiness, strong families, future self-sufficiency and other determinants of child well being.
