MEMORANDUM

To: Ron Henry, Provost and Vice President, Academic Affairs
From: Roy Bahl, Dean
Subject: Annual Report for 2003
Date: May 26, 2004

The Andrew Young School had another strong year in 2003, and made good progress toward our goal of becoming the best policy school in the United States. The newest U.S. News rankings place us 26th of over 200 policy schools around the country, and in our flagship field of public finance, they score us as 5th best. In other of our fields of specialization, we show up in the top 20. This is great progress and it is a tribute to the hard work of an excellent faculty and staff.

The quality of our teaching programs continues to increase, and the quality of our student body continues to improve. As a result, the demand is up: a greater credit hour increase than any other college over the past four years, an increased number of majors in the school, and an increased number of applications to our graduate programs.

Research output has never been stronger. Almost every faculty member and Research Associate is active in publishing, and the result in 2003 was nearly 300 scholarly papers. Presentations were made all over the world, and faculty reviewed for about 125 professional journals. The Public Finance Review, a leading U.S. journal in public economics, moved its home to the Andrew Young School this year.

Our outreach programs moved ahead this year. The Regional Leadership Forum became a full partner in the Andrew Young School, and Research Atlanta continued its strong community leadership. The Fiscal Research Center and the Health Policy Center continued their work as key advisors in the state.

The curriculum and research programs continued to become more international during 2003. Faculty worked in 33 countries in five continents, and international students now constitute about one-fourth of our graduate student population.

In 2004, we move to a new building, bring in some exciting new faculty, and launch a number of new programs. Next year's report of activities will be even better.

Academic Programs and Student Activities

Academics - Enrollment and Classroom Accomplishments

- Enrollment in the Andrew Young School jumped 11 percent, to 945 students in the fall 2003 semester. When the students enrolled in the B.B.A. of Economics program offered in the J. Mack Robinson School of Business are included, total 2003 enrollment was 1,066 students.
- Degrees conferred grew 42 percent from 2002 to 2003, to a total of 263.
- Overall credit hours in AYSPS classes on the whole continued to increase more than any other college at GSU. During the 2003 semesters, credit hours increased 10 percent in the spring, two percent in the summer and four percent in the fall. The M.P.A. and B.S. in H.R.P. programs drew record hours the Fall Semester.
- AYSPS experienced a 15 percent increase in fall applications to its graduate programs. Applications for the M.P.A. program rose 27 percent.
- The School awarded its first Andrew Young and Dean's Scholar fellowships.
- Students from more than 50 countries are enrolled in AYSPS graduate programs in the fall 2003 Semester.
- The Bachelor of Science in Human Resources Policy and Development, initiated in fall 2001, continued its second year as the fastest growing undergraduate degree at GSU.
- The Summer Policy Internship program for rising seniors was sponsored a second year for 11 students from Swarthmore, Colorado, Kentucky, GSU, McGill, Tulane, Berry College, Bethel College, New College of Florida and Agnes Scott.
- Successful completion of the USAID-sponsored Master of Arts program in Economics, with 20 Indonesian bureaucrats and academic professionals selected to train in public policy issues important to the government and economy of Indonesia.
- AYSPS, chosen as a host institution by the U.S. Department of State (Muskie/FSA Program), Harvard University (LASPAU), the International Research and Exchanges Board (IREX) and the Institute of International Education (Fulbright Student Program), enrolled 12 sponsored scholars in its graduate programs this year.
- Hosting of the Seventh Annual Andrew Young School of Policy Studies Honors Day Ceremony to recognize scholarship and other contributions to GSU.

Undergraduate Programs

B.B.A./B.S. and B.A. in Economics

Economics majors at GSU can choose from among three degree options: the B.S. and B.A., which are conferred through the Andrew Young School, and the B.B.A. From fall 2002 to 2003, enrollment in the B.A. and B.S. degree programs grew 52 percent and 60 percent, respectively. Enrollment in the B.B.A. program, which shares economics courses administered by AYSPS, was 121 students in 2003.

Economic Studies in South Africa. The joint Georgia State University / Morehouse College program of Economic Studies Abroad in South Africa is designed to give students a broad understanding of the workings of the South African economy, its infrastructure, its environment and its governance. Through a series of lectures, in country discussions with industry and public officials, and site visits, participants in this summer study program examine the process of economic and social development, as well as South Africa's role in the global marketplace. In addition, the program addresses South Africa's current socio-economic challenges, such as unemployment, poverty, crime and the AIDS epidemic. During Maymester 2003, 12 students from AYSPS and Morehouse and Spelman colleges attended this program. Glenwood Ross, an assistant professor at Morehouse and adjunct professor of Economics at GSU, is the program director.

Economics Club a Treasured Resource. The Economics Club is open to all undergraduate students with an interest in economics. Student members enjoy a variety of academic, career-related and recreational activities through the year. Professor Kelly Edmiston was 2003's faculty advisor for the club.

Summer Policy Internship for Rising Seniors, Department of Economics

The Economics Department in 2003 received an $80,000 grant from the National Science Foundation to continue its successful Summer Internship program. AYSPS is one of only two NSF Research Experiences for Undergraduates (REU) Sites in the country that offers research opportunities in economics.

NSF supports the REU program to attract a larger, diversified pool of students to careers in science and engineering to help ensure they receive the best education possible.

The AYSPS program brought 10 undergraduates – rising seniors – on campus for seven weeks in the summer. Each intern worked with a faculty mentor on a research project supplemented with activities that include regular meetings; a seminar series on research methodologies and related topics; and field trips to working research offices like the Carter Center and the Federal Reserve Bank. Upon completion, each intern delivers a paper and a presentation on a chosen research topic. Students conducted their projects within the following centers.

- Domestic Studies Program
- Environmental Policy Program
- Fiscal Research Center
- Georgia Health Policy Center
- International Studies Program
- Research Atlanta

B.S. in Urban Policy Studies

The Urban Policy core curriculum is designed to increase understanding of the people, economies and workings of urban and metropolitan areas. A general background in this area of study is obtained from a common core curriculum required of all students, which examines the functioning of cities and suburbs, the roles of the public, private, and nonprofit sectors in this functioning, and the special importance of public policy in linking these sectors in metropolitan areas.

Within the core curriculum, students choose between a policy focus and an urban focus. Students who choose the policy focus are also expected to select the public policy specialization beyond the core curriculum. By contrast, students who select the urban focus are expected to choose one of the more urban-related specializations (i.e., aviation and transportation, human resources, planning and economic development, policy or local governance).

The public policy specialization, launched in 2000, continues to grow in popularity. This program draws on the substantial policy expertise of Andrew Young School faculty to offer an exciting range of courses on contemporary issues of public affairs and public policy. In Fall 2003, the BS-UPS degree had 285 students enrolled.

B.S. in Human Resources Policy and Development.

The Human Resources specialization in the Urban Policy Studies degree program degree is designed to prepare students to work in rapidly changing new industries, helping individuals and organizations meet the challenges posed by a knowledge-driven society. Created in 2001, by 2003 it was the fastest-growing degree program at GSU. The B.S. in HRP had 164 students enrolled in Fall 2003. The department has moved quickly to meet this increased demand by adding class sections.

Aviation Program and Certificate. The aviation program continued to grow in 2003, with 124 students enrolled in the fall semester. Thirty-five students successfully completed the flight training practicum during the year. All graduates of the program reported successfully obtaining employment in aviation and several have entered graduate programs. One 2003 graduate accepted a position with Lockheed Martin as a system safety engineer. Two students accepted positions with a new, Atlanta-based cargo airline just prior to their December graduations.

Twelve undergraduate Airline Management Certificates were awarded in 2003, three to Delta Air Lines employees. Seven students completed ASA internships, and two were hired by the airline.

In 2003, initial program plans were put in place with Griffin Technical College to continue developing a network of schools in Georgia for aviation education, adding to past work with Gainesville College. Also, Captain Lyle Letteer joined the aviation program faculty as a visiting lecturer. Capt. Letteer is an expert in airline domestic and international operations, aviation safety and human factors who recently retired from Delta as an L-1011 captain flying international routes.

Masters Programs

“Graduate students come to AYSPS not only from Georgia and other states, but also from more than 50 different countries. Our time and investment bear fruit with their hard work. Providing a solid, rigorous and objective graduate education is one of the most worthwhile things we do.” – Dean Roy Bahl, The Briefing

America’s Best Graduate Schools. The April 2004 edition of U.S. News and World Report’s ranking of Public Affairs graduate programs rated Georgia State University among the top 25 universities in the nation. The rankings place AYSPS programs and curriculum in the top 10 percent of more than 200 schools in four key areas: 5th in Public Finance and Budgeting, 12th in City Management and Urban Policy, 16th in Public Management Administration and 21st in Public Policy Analysis.

M.A. in Economics and M.A. in Economics-Policy Track

The Master of Arts in Economics is designed to meet the needs of students planning careers in local, state and federal government or the private sector. Emphasis is placed upon analytical skills; micro and macroeconomic theory and mathematical statistics are required. The program also satisfies the needs of social science and economics teachers at the secondary and college level, and complements training in other disciplines such as finance, real estate, political science or history.

The Master of Arts in Economics Policy Track prepares professionals for careers in the formation and/or implementation of economic policy and those who must be able to evaluate and disseminate such policy to a wider audience. This degree exposes students to critical policy issues and equips them to understand and utilize economic data in evaluating outcomes. Its focus on policy makes it distinct from the traditional graduate-level economics programs that emphasize skills, theory and statistics.

Enrollment in the M.A. in Economics in 2003 ranged from a low of 42 in Fall Semester to a high of 53 in the spring. These programs attract students from many countries.

Katia Roiija, a master’s of economics student, won the Joseph K. Heyman Scholarship Award presented by the Atlanta Economics Club.

Indonesian Masters Program Graduates its Second Class. The Department of Economics in 2003 graduated its final class of 20 students from the USAID-funded Indonesian Masters Program in Applied Economics. This 1-year program offered graduate-level training in economics and economic policy analysis targeted at economics specialists in the country’s universities and government institutions. Most students who graduated from the program in 2003 returned to Indonesia. Many have attained prestigious positions in its government and educational institutions as well as in international donor agencies. Three students from the 2003 class have remained to complete their Ph.D.s.

The M.P.A., the M.P.A./J.D., and M.S. in Urban Policy Studies

The graduate degree programs in Urban Policy Studies (M.S.) and Public Administration (M.P.A.) prepare students for responsible professional careers in governmental and nonprofit agencies, and for effective leadership in a broad spectrum of public service roles. AYSPS also offers a joint M.P.A./Juris Doctor degree in collaboration with the GSU College of Law (M.P.A./J.D.). These graduates are sought by organizations that need expertise in both public management and law or in legislative monitoring, regulatory compliance or other legal matters.

The M.P.A. program is accredited by the National Association of Schools of Public Affairs and Administration and has a faculty nationally recognized for its applied research and scholarly contributions. Students in this program in 2003 chose from among career tracks that included Human Resources, Management and Finance, Natural Resource Management, Nonprofit Management, Planning and Economic Development, and Policy Analysis and Social Policy. Career tracks for the M.S. in Urban Policy Studies include Nonprofit and Civic Leadership, Planning and Economic Development, Policy Analysis, and Social Policy.

Over the past year, the M.P.A. program has grown substantially. In the fall 2003 semester, 183 students were enrolled in the M.P.A. program—an 11 percent increase over 2002—and 35 in the M.S. U.P.S. program. The department had five students enrolled in the M.P.A./J.D program in the fall.

Career Practitioners Aid the Program. The M.P.A. Advisory Board is comprised of distinguished practitioners from federal and state agencies, local governments and nonprofit organizations who advise M.P.A. program faculty to inform the curriculum. Advisors enhance the program's linkages with the practitioner community and expand opportunities for internships and jobs for students and graduates. The Board has met monthly since its establishment. In 2003, the Board applied findings from earlier strategy meetings with students to the program's planning and evaluation efforts.

M.S. in Human Resource Development

In fall semester 2003, 46 students were enrolled in the M.S. HRD program. At the end of 2003, AYSPS began a two-year period of phasing out the masters and Ph.D.-level Human Resource Development programs to allow the school to allocate more of its increasingly limited public resources to the study of policy and policy issues.

Graduate Certificate Programs

The school's innovative graduate certificate programs, developed to provide postgraduate and professional education opportunities for practitioners in select fields, are now also available to students in related degree programs. Graduate certificates are offered in Disaster Management, Natural Resource Management, Nonprofit Management and Planning and Economic Development.

Nonprofit Studies

Students in the Nonprofit and Civic Leadership specialization of the M.S.-U.P.S. degree learn about the not-for-profit sector of society and its role in cities. This program of study is appropriate for people wishing to serve as leaders in nonprofit organizations within a variety of organizational settings. Students in the M.P.A.-Nonprofit Management career track are prepared to meet the challenges of this rapidly expanding field. The degree program's twin goals are to help nonprofit managers already working in the field to advance their careers and to assist those just beginning to gain the skills needed to become effective professionals.

New Programs in 2003

AYSPS Hosts New Peace Corps Master's Program

In February 2003, AYSPS was chosen by Peace Corps to be a host institution for its Master's International Program, which includes a Masters of Economics, Masters of Economics-Policy Track, and Masters of Public Administration. Peace Corps volunteers can now combine a master's degree with a two-year Peace Corps tour.

Each graduate student/PCV chosen under this program will work closely with an academic advisor to exploit the synergy potential between classroom work and field experience. Students will be academically advised in a manner that will fully exploit the Peace Corps experience to enrich his or her academic experience through thesis research, directed readings, and internships. Students beginning their program of study fall semester (mid-August) will be ready for their overseas assignment the following fall (late August or September) or winter (January). Students are expected to begin signing up for this program in 2004/2005.

New Degree Program Will Join Urban Policy Studies and Theology

During spring semester 2003, AYSPS was circulating agreements for a dual degree program with two of Atlanta's leading schools of theology: the Interdenominational Theological Center of the Atlanta University Center and the Columbia Theological Seminary. When this proposed degree program is approved, students will be able to earn a Master of Divinity and a Master of Science in Urban Policy Studies dual degree by attending joint courses in the schools. During Fall Semester 2003, students from these schools attended the program's first joint course created as part of this collaborative effort, "Power, Faith, and Civic Leadership," one session of which was attended by Ambassador Andrew Young.

Doctoral Programs

AYSPS in 2003 had 73 students in its Ph.D. in Economics program, a 26 percent increase in enrollment since 2002. Enrollment in the Ph.D. in Public Policy program administered jointly with the Georgia Institute of Technology remained level in 2002 with 30 students. Word of the School's doctoral programs has spread; in 2003 the Economics Department received applications from Turkey, Jordan, Thailand, India, China, Romania, Korea, Brazil, Cameroon, Kenya, Chile, Ukraine, Netherlands, Indonesia, Austria and Spain, as well as the United States.

Doctoral Graduates in the Andrew Young School

Six doctoral degrees were awarded in the Andrew Young School in 2003.

Francisco Arze (Ph.D. in Economics) successfully defended his dissertation entitled, "A Study of the Relationship Between Fiscal Decentralization and the Composition of Public Expenditures." He is currently working as Senior Research Associate in the International Studies Program at the Andrew Young School.

Angela Blair Hutchinson (Ph.D. in Public Policy) successfully defended her dissertation entitled, "A Health Technology Assessment of HIV Counseling and Testing Technologies: Evidence of Effectiveness, Cost-Effectiveness and The Consumer Perspective." She and David Rein are the first graduates of the school's joint doctoral program with the Georgia Institute of Technology. She is a decision scientist in the Division of HIV/AIDS Prevention at the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Mikhail Melnik (Ph.D. in Economics) successfully defended his dissertation, "Issues in The Economics of E-Commerce." He is a visiting assistant professor of economics in the Andrew Young School.

Kathryn O'Neill (Ph.D. in Human Resource Development) successfully defended her dissertation, "The effect of masculine gender schema on the transfer of interpersonal communication skills training to the workplace." O'Neill won the AYSPS "Award for Distinguished Contribution to HRD Research." She is a senior consultant at Rock-Tenn Company and teaches part time in the Management Department of the School of Business at Clayton College and State University.

David Rein (Ph.D. in Public Policy) successfully defended his dissertation, "Modeling the Health Care Utilization of Children in Medicaid." He joins Dr. Hutchinson as one of the first students to graduate from the school's new joint doctoral program with the Georgia Institute of Technology. He is presently a research economist for RTI International in Atlanta, Georgia.

Sasatra Sudsawasd (Ph.D. in Economics) successfully defended his dissertation, "Investment Under Trade Policy Uncertainty," and is now on the faculty of the School of Development Economics at the National Institute of Development Administration in Bangkok, Thailand.

Current Students

Doctoral students coauthor a number of articles with AYSPS faculty, and engage in a wide assortment of research and international activities. For complete information on the research in 2003, see "Graduate Student Activities" in the research section of this report.

Ph.D. in Economics

The Ph.D. in Economics program develops in its students a high degree of competence in conducting basic and applied research and in teaching to prepare them for careers that require a doctoral degree in economics. It provides a rigorous course of study that emphasizes the latest theoretical knowledge, quantitative techniques, research methodology and empirical evidence in the student's selected specialization.

Recent graduates have accepted academic jobs at the Naval Postgraduate School in California, Indiana University and Deakin University in Australia. Recent non-academic placements include the Environmental Protection Agency, the Congressional Budget Office and the Center for Study of Science and Society in Dallas, Texas.

Joint Ph.D. in Public Policy

The joint Ph.D. program in Public Policy is designed to prepare research-oriented policy analysts, design specialists, policy evaluators and policy implementation experts for responsible positions in universities, research centers, nonprofit organizations and government agencies. Complementing Georgia Tech's strengths, the faculty and curriculum at AYSPS provide expertise in public administration, program evaluation, urban policy studies and economics. Doctoral students can participate in applied policy research through several nationally recognized research centers at both universities, which include the Policy Research Center, the Research Value Mapping Program, the Georgia Health Policy Center, the Air Quality Laboratory, the Environmental Policy Program and the Technology Policy and Assessment Center.

The Andrew Young School's doctoral programs continue to grow and diversify. In 2003, 14 students presented research papers at regional and national professional conferences, 19 papers were published in refereed journals, with six under review, and seven students taught courses.

Graduate Research and Teaching Assistants

Almost all doctoral students and many master's-level students in AYSPS work as graduate assistants while completing their academic programs. A list of the break-down per semester is provided below. Funding for GRAs totaled $1,184,280 for 2003, a 33 percent increase over 2002.

	Number of GRAs Employed

Degrees Conferred

In 2003, the 263 degrees awarded at the Andrew Young School were 42 percent more than those awarded in 2002. Students earned almost an equal number of bachelor's and graduate-level degrees: 137 undergraduates, 121 master's students and 6 doctoral candidates received degrees in the three semesters of this calendar year. These graduates are listed in the table below.

Graduation with honors is designated as follows: * denotes graduation cum laude,  magna cum laude and  summa cum laude. Because the B.B.A. degree in Economics is conferred through the Robinson College of Business, those graduates are not listed in this report.

Internships and Service Learning

Internships in the Department of Public Administration and Urban Studies

Sixty-six graduate students and 45 undergraduates completed internships for academic credit in 2003. The graduate internship is one of several exit options for students in the M.P.A., M.P.A./J.D., and the M.S. in Urban Policy Studies degree programs. It is required of students in the M.S. in Human Resource Development program who do not have significant prior work experience. For undergraduates, the internship is an optional capstone course for urban policy studies students in their senior year, or is available as a junior elective.

Student Perspectives - Quotes from PAUS Interns in 2003

“Since this is a field that I plan to pursue a career in, I am very excited about this internship and look forward to working there again, in an internship or full-time career.”

“I worked full time as Policy Assistant in the Subcommittee of Law and Regulation Affairs (SLRA) of Chongqing (China) Municipal People’s Congress... The officials of SLRA welcomed students having an overseas education to share their knowledge of advanced theory and good experience of foreign governments with them....”

“My supervisor has given me the opportunity to take on challenging tasks and has provided the tools to help me succeed. I have had the opportunity to work with mayors and city managers across the state (Georgia) and have responded to their questions and concerns about the issues they face.”

“I enjoy examining ways to make organizations responsive to the needs and demands of the public they serve.”

“Working with a small nonprofit was a great learning experience for me...My duties initially centered on community and market research. I was involved in the daily operations, planning and budgeting, and experienced the role of a board in decision-making.”

“Although my immediate supervisor only jokingly suggests that I ‘might be working my way into a permanent position,’ I do feel that the experience has opened a door to the possibility of a long-term role with the company. I also give a lot of thanks for the PAUS Internship Program itself. Without it, I probably wouldn’t be nearly as well equipped for my future after graduation.”

This internship program is coordinated by Gregory Streib and Katherine Willoughby. According to interns, the program’s flexibility and online facilitation make the program extremely attractive.

Service Learning

The Service Learning program administered by the Office of Community Outreach and Partnerships offers students the opportunity to participate in community service. In this program sponsored by the Corporation for National and Community Service: AmeriCorps Programs, students representing virtually all academic majors and courses of study at GSU are able to apply their classroom studies in community settings, helping to address genuine community needs. More than 30 Atlanta nonprofit organizations participate as Service Learning sites.

Student Awards, Honors and Scholarships

Honors Day

The Andrew Young School of Policy Studies held its Seventh Annual Honors Day Ceremony at the Sheraton Atlanta Hotel on March 11, 2003 to recognize the academic excellence and service achievements of its students.

The School celebrates undergraduate excellence every semester. In spring 2003, 78 AYSPS undergraduates qualified for the Dean's List and 26 were designated Faculty Scholars. In the summer semester, 33 undergraduates qualified for the Dean's List and 34 were Faculty Scholars; in the fall, 51 qualified for the Dean's List and 42 were Faculty Scholars.

The following students were recognized this year:

Anil Lewis (M.P.A.) received the GSU Torch of Peace Award, which honors a GSU student who has exhibited outstanding leadership and has made a significant contribution to Georgia State University.

Scholarships and fellowships:

Li Zhang (Ph.D. in Economics) received the Jack Blinksilver Scholarship in Economics. Established in honor of Dr. Jack Blinksilver, late professor of economics emeritus, this scholarship is awarded annually to a graduate or undergraduate student who excels in economics.

Velma Zahirovic-Herbert (Ph.D. in Economics) received the Carole Keels Scholarship in Economics, established in honor of the late Carole Y. Keels, a GSU alumna. This scholarship recognizes a student with significant career experience who is pursuing a degree in economics. At the age of 38, Dr. Keels returned to college to complete both a master's and Ph.D. degree in economics at Georgia State.

Peter S. Bluestone (Ph.D. in Economics) received the George Malanos Scholarship in Economics, which is given in honor of Dr. George Malanos, late professor of economics and first chair of the department, to the Ph.D. student selected by the faculty as best exemplifying a commitment to the exchange of ideas and the creation of a community of scholars.

Paul Kagundu (Ph.D. in Economics) received the E.D. (Jack) Dunn Fellowship, established to honor the late Banking Commissioner E.D. Dunn, a Georgia State alumnus. This fellowship is awarded annually to a deserving graduate student in the Andrew Young School with academic and research interest in public finance, financial regulatory policy impact on national, regional and local economics, or public management.

Rachel A. Ferencik (M.P.A.) received the Governor Joe Frank Harris Scholarship, which is given annually to a student in the school based on academic merit. The scholarship honors Georgia's former governor, whose administration was noted for improvements in education. Governor Harris has also served as a Distinguished Executive Fellow in the Andrew Young School.

Abel B. Embaye (Ph.D. in Economics), M. Penny Gasela (B.A. in Economics), Edward B. Sennoga (Ph.D. in Economics), and Grace L. Chikoto (M.P.A.) received the Carolyn McClain Young Leadership Fund Award. The award was established to provide training opportunities for government officials, junior executives in national finance ministries, and for young people who may be the leaders of tomorrow in countries with emerging economies, especially in Africa and the Caribbean. Recipients of leadership fund awards are chosen by a committee appointed by the Dean.

Departmental awards in Economics:

V. Esteban Balseca (B.S. in Economics) and Lara E. Platt (B.S. in Economics) received the Economics Award, presented to the undergraduate students who achieve the highest grade point average in economics courses above the 2000 level.

J. Dylan Littlejohn (B.A. in Economics) received the Wall Street Journal Student Achievement Award, which is presented to the outstanding graduating senior majoring in economics, selected by a committee of the faculty in the department.

Margaretha Bolang, Katia M. Rioja, and R. Renata Simatupang received the Master of Arts in Economics Award, which is given annually in recognition of outstanding academic achievement to the students with the highest grade point average in the Master of Arts in Economics program.

Eunice Heredia (Ph.D. in Economics) received the Theodore C. Boyden Excellence in Teaching Economics Award, which is given annually to the graduate student in economics who best displays excellence in teaching economics and in improving economic understanding, primarily in the Economics 2105 and 2106 courses.

Mikhail I. Melnik (Ph.D. in Economics) received the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies Excellence in Teaching Award. This award recognizes a graduate student who, in the judgment of the faculty, has performed exceptionally well in the classroom as a graduate teaching assistant.

Departmental awards in Public Administration and Urban Studies:

Thomas E. Dunphy (B.S. in Urban Policy Studies) received the United Airlines-Eddie Carlson Award in Aviation Administration, which is presented to the Aviation and Transportation student who has the highest grade point average for the academic year.

William E. Clark, Jr. (B.S. in Urban Policy Studies) and Alexandra J. Zinnes (M.S. in Urban Policy Studies) received the William R. Gable Award. Given in honor of the Dean of the College of Urban Life from 1973 to 1975, this award is presented to an undergraduate student and a graduate student majoring in urban policy studies who have demonstrated high academic standing and professional promise.

Eric J. Taylor (M.P.A.) received the Best Term Paper Award. Presented annually to a graduate student in the Public Administration and Urban Studies program, awardees are selected by a faculty committee after reviews of term papers submitted by students or recommended by professors. Taylor's paper was titled, "Big Brother or Good Policy? Examining the Issue of Electronic Monitoring in the Workplace."

Chad M. Gorman (M.P.A.) received the Public Administration Academic Achievement Award, which is presented to the student who has the highest grade point average for the academic year in the Master of Public Administration program.

Lisa L. Youngblood (M.P.A./J.D.) received the Master of Public Administration/Juris Doctor Academic Achievement Award, which is presented to the student who has the highest grade point average for the academic year in the joint M.P.A./J.D. program.

Susan R. Cook and Lynette Francis-Thornhill received the Award for Distinguished Performance in the M.S. in Human Resource Development Program, awarded to students who have consistently demonstrated superior academic performance and made significant contributions to the learning outcomes of fellow students in the Human Resource Development program.

James H. Clotfelter received the Award for Distinguished Contribution to the Application of Human Resource Development in the Workplace. This award goes to the student who has demonstrated consistently superior academic performance in the M.S. in Human Resource Development program, and has applied this learning to make a significant contribution to the development of human resources in the field.

Jonathan J. Dawe (Ph.D. in Human Resource Development) and Kimberly C. Magee (Ph.D. in HRD) received the Award for Distinguished Contribution to Human Resource Development Research, presented to the students who have made or hold a clear promise for making a significant contribution to the knowledge base of the Human Resource Development profession through original research.

Other special recognitions:

Andrew W. Abercrombie, V. Esteban Balseca, John J. Boyeskie, Armando A. Castro, Justen S. Cook, James O. Ellison, Gregory L. Jones, Mihir R. Patel, Lara E. Platt, and Dario F. Tonelli were inducted into the Georgia State chapter of Omicron Delta Epsilon, the national honor society for students of economics. Selection is based on academic merit and requires a minimum number of economics credit hours.

Victoria V. Alexeeva, Mari-Leigh Beckworth, Susan L. Berry, Marguerite E. Bryan, James D. Cook, Ashley E. Cooper, Mary E. Czetwzynski, Rachel A. Ferencik, Richard W. Ferry, Tiffany N. Franklin, Gerardo E. Gonzalez, Chad M. Gorman, Anthony W. Griffin, Tao Guo, Sara G. Hackley, Charles B. Hess, Christopher S. Hester, Megan C. Jones, Brandee D. Krug, Yong-Jun Lee, Anne P. Maynard, Hasmik L. Melikyan, Jannine M. Miller, Pamela Moolenaar-Wirsiy, Kimberley M. Morey, Christine L. Smith, Eric J. Taylor, Neli P. Todorova, Lucia A. Valdes, and Lisa L. Youngblood were inducted into Pi Alpha Alpha, the national honor society for the field of public affairs and public administration. The society's purpose is to encourage and recognize outstanding scholarship and accomplishment, to promote the advancement of quality in the education and practice of the art and science of public affairs and administration, and to foster integrity, professionalism and effective performance in the conduct of government and related public service activities. Membership identifies those students with the highest performance levels in academic programs preparing them for public service careers.

Michael A. Collins, Amy C. Depoy, Louis C. Kostyo, Jared M. Osterhage, Lara E. Platt, and Dana L. Wright received The Faculty Scholarship Plaque. The Faculty Scholarship Plaque is awarded for outstanding academic achievement to those students who maintain a 4.0 grade point average while earning a prescribed number of credit hours at GSU.

Michael A. Collins, Amy C. Depoy, Thomas E. Dunphy, Mark D. Elsey, Aleksandar Eshete, Louis C. Kostyo, Sandra D. Lassiter, Jared M. Osterhage, Lara E. Platt, and Dana L. Wright received the Dean's Scholarship Key. The Dean's Scholarship Key is awarded for outstanding academic achievement at Georgia State University, determined by either a 4.0 grade point average for 30 hours in residence, a 3.8 for 60 hours, a 3.65 for 90 hours, or a 3.5 grade point average for 120 hours in residence.

Service Awards are given to recognize special service to the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies and Georgia State University. Tristan J. Fritz was honored for service as AYSPS Senator in the Student Government Association; Paul Kagundu for service as an officer in the AYSPS Graduate Student Association; J. Dylan Littlejohn for service as President of the GSU Economics Club; J. Derek Morgan for service as President of the GSU Chapter of Alpha Eta Rho national aviation fraternity; and Joseph E. Winter for service as AYSPS Senator and President Pro Tem, Student Government Association.

AYSPS International Scholars. This year, the Andrew Young School was pleased to host international scholars supported by the Edmund S. Muskie and Freedom Support Act Fellowship Program of American Councils for International Education, the Russian-U.S. Young Leadership Fellows for Public Service Program of the U.S. Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs, International Research and Exchanges Board, and the Fulbright program of the Institute of International Education. Additionally, the School welcomed 20 new scholars to its Indonesian Masters Program in Economics, sponsored by USAID-Jakarta to train students in policy issues important to the government and economy of Indonesia. Student Profiles

The latest academic year is one for the record book: record enrollments, record credit hours and record applications. Demand for AYSPS programs and degrees, particularly at the graduate level, far outstripped supply in 2003. "We get far more qualified applicants than we can admit," said Sue Fagan, director of Academic and Administrative Services.

In scholarship, instruction, research, public service, graduate and undergraduate education, AYSPS is either in or moving into the top ranks of policy schools nationally.

-excerpted from 2003 issues of The Briefing

The student population in the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies not only reflects, but sets the pace for the diversity of cultures and people evident on the Georgia State University campus and around metro Atlanta. In addition to attracting its fair share of domestic students, the School is becoming known around the world for its academic excellence: more than a third of its graduate students are now international. They hail from as many as 50 countries, enriching the classroom with world views from countries as diverse as Korea, Romania, Indonesia, Bangladesh, Belgium, Spain and South Africa.

The School continues to expand and diversify. Students enrolled in the School's degree programs increased 11 percent from Fall Semester 2002 to 2003, with more than a 15 percent increase in graduate applicants. Students from within the U.S. represent nearly half the states. The School is beginning to get a good deal of attention for the quality of its undergraduate programs, with an enrollment of 507 undergraduates and 438 graduates by fall 2003.

Many of the international students who attend AYSPS are sponsored by prestigious scholarship programs. In 2003, the School again served as a host institution for the Edmund Muskie Freedom Support Act Fellowship program of the American Councils for International Education, the USAID-funded Indonesian Scholars Program and the Fulbright program of the Institute of International Education (IIE), among others.

Undergraduate Students

The popularity of AYSPS majors in economics (72 BS, BA and 121 BBA), urban policy studies (247) and human resources policy (164) continues to increase, with the School's B.S. in Urban Policy Studies program constituting the largest group of undergraduates. There were nearly 700 undergraduate majors in Fall 2003. Many choose to enroll in AYSPS degree programs to better their careers in the public sector. The male/female ratio is approximately half and half, with women making up a slightly higher percentage; nearly half of the undergraduate students are minority or international students.

New Master's Students

The AYSPS master's degree students continued to lead diversity on the Georgia State campus and in the city of Atlanta: (need new percentages here for 2003) approximately 56% are female; 44% are male; 47% of our master's degree students are minority and/or international. Majors in public administration continue to constitute the largest group of graduate students, with 183 in fall 2003. Most students have full-time jobs and are eager to bring the perspectives gained in their work experiences into the classroom.

Twenty students were enrolled in the final year of the Indonesian Masters program. Sponsored by USAID-Jakarta, this is a fifteen-month program of masters' degree training in economics for Indonesian students who will return to positions of leadership in policy analysis. These students are listed in the "Masters Program" section.

Doctoral Students

The Andrew Young School admitted 21 new students to the Ph.D. in Economics program and 9 new students to the Ph.D. in Public Policy in the fall. The Department of Economics hosted a campus visit for prospective students early in the year, as well as a day-long Ph.D. orientation and luncheon. Students who joined the joint Public Policy program were welcomed at receptions held at GSU and Georgia Institute of Technology.

AYSPS in 2003 had 73 students enrolled in the Ph.D. in Economics program, an increase of 26 percent over fall 2002, and 34 in the joint Ph.D. in Public Policy. For more information on these students, go to the “Doctoral Programs” section of this report.

Faculty and Professional Staff Activities

Papers, Books and Chapters: Published or Forthcoming¹

Nearly 300 scholarly papers and books were published or forthcoming in 2003. Another 108 papers are presently under review. It is also heartening to note that close to thirty percent of the published or accepted papers in 2003 were joint products of two or more of our faculty or research associates.

Research Centers and Programs

Department of Economics¹

The Department of Economics faculty is very active in the Centers and Programs of the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies. In addition to the entries in those sections, and to publications listed in "Papers, Books and Chapters: Published or Forthcoming," various other projects of economics department faculty are listed below. Academic programs are described in the Academic Assistance section. James Alm is Chair of the Department of Economics.

Highlights

- The Department has admitted 22 new doctoral students in Fall 2003, and 21 new MA-Ec students. There are now nearly 80 students in the Ph.D. program and 53 in the MA-Ec program.
- The department has 31 full-time faculty members, and will grow over the next five years to over 40 faculty, making it one of the largest economics departments in the country.
- The Department offers four unique programs in addition to its undergraduate and graduate degrees: Peace Corps Master's International Program, Indonesian Masters Program, South Africa Study Abroad Program, and the Summer Policy Internship Program
- Economics faculty taught over 175 courses in 2003.

Programs

Graduate Teaching Assistant Training Program. The program was created in 2000 and is designed to help GTAs in Economics perform well in the classrooms. The training in 2003 was extensive. GTAs video-taped some portions of their lectures. These lectures then were analyzed by Harry Dangel, director of the Center for Teaching and Learning, together with GTAs to identify areas for improvement. The responses from GTAs who participated in the program were very positive. Yongsheng Xu manages the GTA training program, and continued collaboration with the Center for Teaching and Learning in 2003.

Faculty Recruitment. The Department hired Mark Rider as Associate Professor of Economics. He has worked previously at the Office of Tax Analysis and at Kennesaw State University. Rider earned his Ph.D. in Economics from Georgia State University, and began work in Fall 2003. The Department hired Shelby Frost as Clinical Assistant Professor of Economics in Fall 2003. She earned her Ph.D. in Economics from the University of Colorado at Boulder, and has been teaching at GSU since Fall 2000. Grant Black has been appointed visiting Assistant Research Professor, and Mikhail Melnik has been appointed visiting Assistant Professor.

Departmental Self-Study. The Department of Economics has completed its Self-Study. As a result of this internal evaluation, the GSU Provost, Ron Henry, has committed to the Department over the next 5 years the resources to hire:

- Five tenure-track assistant professors
- Two tenured senior professors
- Two non-tenure-track assistant professors to meet teaching needs
- One graduate administrator

This represents a major investment of resources in the Department, in the AYSPS centers, and in the AYSPS itself. The Self-Study was connected throughout to the goal of making the Andrew Young School the best policy school in the South. Similarly, the Action Plan was connected to the goal of hiring people who can make the research centers better because the centers are integral to the Department's and the School's vision. The Self-Study committee was comprised of Jorge Martinez-Vazquez, Kelly Edmiston, David Sjoquist, Laura Taylor and Mary Beth Walker.

Summer Intern Program. The Department continued its summer intern program, under the supervision of Neven Valev and with funding from the National Science Foundation. Eleven students from around the country attended the 6-week program, which ran from May 26 to July 12. Interns were from Swarthmore College, University of Colorado, University of Kentucky, Georgia State University, McGill University, University of Colorado, Tulane University, Berry College, Bethel College, New College of Florida, and Agnes Scott College. Research fields included fiscal reform in Tanzania, tax compliance, labor market experiences of immigrants in the U.S., income dynamics in Georgia, international bank lending, the Head Start Program, and water supply policy. The quality of applicants for this program has steadily increased; for example, more than 90 percent of the applicants had a GPA higher than 3.0. The increase in student interest may be attributed to the significantly greater visibility provided to the program by NSF funding (since 2002) and the program's listing on the NSF Web site.

Indonesian Masters Program. The Department of Economics welcomed another group of masters students from Indonesia, funded by USAID-Jakarta. After completing some initial training in Manila and Jakarta, students from throughout Indonesia arrived in Atlanta in early August to begin a one-year masters program. The second group of Indonesian Masters Students all graduated in June 2003, and returned to Indonesia after completing internships in Atlanta, and around the U.S. Two of the Indonesian MA graduates are furthering their studies at AYSPS as they began their Ph.D. coursework in Fall 2003.

South Africa Study Abroad. The May 2003 economics study abroad program was a success. Twelve students from GSU and Morehouse College traveled to South Africa for a 3-week study abroad program, under the direction of Professor Glenwood Ross of Morehouse College. The students traveled to Johannesburg, stayed in student housing at the University of Pretoria, and visited Cape Town to gain insight into the South African economy. The 2004 trip, South Africa: Its Evolving Socio-Political Economy, will take place in May and June.

Projects

Undergraduate Research Experiences in Economics. James Alm. This is a summer intern program now in its third year, funded by the National Science Foundation. (3 years, $160,000)

Indonesian Masters Degree program in Economics. James Alm, Roy Bahl, and Jorge Martinez-Vazquez. Funded by USAID-Jakarta. (Second year, $2,000,000)

Cost-Effectiveness of Five Alternative Strategies for HIV Counseling and Testing in the Emergency Room/Urgent Care Setting. Paul Farnham (with Angela Hutchinson*, Bernard Branson and Sheryl Lyss). Under development.

Estimating the Size of the Informal Sector. James Alm and Brian Erard. A project from the Internal Revenue Service. ($75,000)

Department of Public Administration and Urban Studies

The Department of Public Administration and Urban Studies is ideally positioned for collaborative and interdisciplinary enrichment through its affiliation with the Andrew Young School's other research components. Its faculty, staff, and graduate students are actively engaged in research and public service projects that inform public policy and enhance the quality and effectiveness of policy implementation and evaluation in the United States as well as internationally. Academic programs are listed in the Academic Assistance section. PAUS faculty are very active in the Centers and Programs of the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies. In addition to work found in those sections, and to publications listed in "Papers, Books and Chapters: Published or Forthcoming," various other projects are listed below. Lloyd Nigro is the Chair of Public Administration and Urban Studies.

Programs and Activities

M.P.A. Advisory Board. The M.P.A. Advisory Board was created by Katherine Willoughby in 2001 to assess the M.P.A. curriculum, to ensure graduates meet the needs of today's public agencies. Its 15 members, many who are AYSPS Alumni, hold chief executive and other administrative positions with local, state and federal agencies and departments, as well as non-profits. The board has developed a mission that emphasizes making a positive impact on public service, taking on the primary role as a resource to faculty in communicating the necessary skills, knowledge, ethics and values required to practice in the public sector. This board also offers the program a more formal connection with its alumni.

In 2003, the M.P.A. Advisory Board continued to expand its activities. An informal reception on September 25 allowed the Board to interact with students and staff. The Board hosted a public service panel discussion for students. Board Members and other experts addressed questions about finding jobs and making contacts in the public and nonprofit sectors. Professors Katherine Willoughby, Robert Eger, and Ted Poister are the PAUS faculty liaisons with the M.P.A. Advisory Board.

M.P.A. Advisory Board Members:

Heather Alhadeff	Director, Downtown Transportation Management Association of Central Atlanta Progress
Alphonse Davis	Field Office Manager for U.S. GAO
Kevin Fillion	Director, Georgia Senate Budget Office
Jerry Griffin	Executive Director, Association County Commissioners of Georgia
Charles Hammonds	Public Works Director, City of Decatur
Jim Higdon	Executive Director of the Georgia Municipal Association
Denise Holmes	Staff Development Coordinator, Georgia Department of Audits and Accounts
Jim Lyle	Chief Executive Officer of Georgia Public Broadcasting
Ann O'Connor	Atlanta Regional Inspector General, U.S. Department of HHS
John O'Kane	Senior Vice President of Coxé Curry & Associates
Rebecca Polizzotto	City Manager for Conyers
Bob Regus	City Administrator for Alpharetta
Rick Reinhard	Principal Consultant, Niagara Consulting Group
Dana Russell	Commissioner of DOAS
Katherine Sherrington	Tax Commissioner for Gwinnett County

Faculty Recruitment. The Department hired two new Assistant Professors, who joined the faculty in August. Carolyn Bourdeaux, from the Maxwell School of Syracuse University, successfully defended her Ph.D. dissertation in June 2003. Her areas of specialization include public management and finance, economic development, and urban policy. Her background includes being a Senior Associate with Sarah J. Siwek & Associates and serving as a legislative assistant to Oregon's Senator Ron Wyden. Robert J. Eger III earned his Ph.D. in Public Administration from the Martin School of University of Kentucky in 2000. He came to AYSPS from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. His professional background includes research associate positions with the Kentucky Transportation Center and the Council of State Governments. His areas of specialization include public budgeting and finance, financial management, and research methodology.

Nonprofit Programs. The nonprofit program was created “to foster academic scholarship in the nonprofit sector, and serve as a conduit between scholars and practitioners in creating and disseminating knowledge.” Atlanta has one of the fastest-growing nonprofit sectors in the United States, providing an ideal location in which to study this sector’s growing influence and challenges. The impact of technology changes, shifting demographics, global influences and the sector’s increasing linkages to the private and government sectors are presented in a program that combines rigorous academic study, critical research and influential community partnerships. Both the M.P.A. and M.S. in Urban Policy Studies degree programs offer specializations in nonprofit management and policy, and a Graduate Certificate in Nonprofit Management is offered. The department is committed to serving as a leading edge center for research and professional education in the nonprofit field. For more information, see the Nonprofit Studies Program section of the annual report.

Joint Ph.D. Program. The joint Georgia State-Georgia Tech doctoral program in public policy graduated its first two Ph.D.s. in 2003. Angela Blair Hutchinson’s dissertation was “A Health Technology Assessment of HIV Counseling and Testing Technologies: Evidence of Effectiveness, Cost-Effectiveness and the Consumer Perspective” and was chaired by Paul G. Farnham (Economics). David Rein’s dissertation was “Modeling the Health Care Utilization of Children in Medicaid” and was chaired by Gregory B. Lewis (PAUS). Nine excellent new students entered the joint doctoral program in 2003: Kwaw Andam, Shena Ashley, Sarah Blake, Hai (David) Guo, Taehyun Jung, Monica LaBelle, Timothy McNeill, Ignacio Navarro, and Lei Zhang. The program awarded its first Andrew Young fellowship (to Shena Ashley) and its first Dean’s Scholar fellowship (to Monica LaBelle).

The Public Management Group. The Public Management Group (PMG) of the Andrew Young School is committed to promoting state-of-the-art management practices in the public sectors, to advancing both the efficiency and effectiveness of program and financial operations of public agencies, and to supporting the professional, democratic and ethical administration of government in the United States and around the world. Faculty involved in PMG activities to date include: Lloyd Nigro, Judith Ottoson, Theodore Poister, David Van Slyke, Gregory Streib, William Waugh, and Katherine Willoughby.

Human Resource Development Alumni Club. Nearly 200 alumni have initiated contact since the club was formed. President Neelam Sharma and founding members are excited about their strong response and participation in the club’s inaugural programs. The HRD Alumni Club is planning a fund-raising campaign to endow a new Verna Willis Scholarship, which will be awarded annually to an outstanding HRD student. The group plans to award its first scholarship in fall 2004.

University of Northumbria Collaboration. The PAUS faculty signed a Memo of Understanding (MOU) with The University of Northumbria’s (UNN) School of Arts and Social Sciences, Department of Politics and the Centre for Public Policy located in Newcastle upon Tyne, U.K. The primary purpose of this MOU is to create a joint masters degree in International Public Administration (IMPA) for students enrolled at both UNN and AYSPS. This degree will permit students to spend a semester at each institution followed by a thesis and an internship with the EU or with other organizations such as CARE, AID, WHO, etc. The MOU provides a framework by which the two sides may work on establishing a curriculum and other program features that meet the requirements of both faculties and institution. The MOU arose from visits by UNN faculty to AYSPS in April 2002 followed by a visit from their Deputy-Chancellor for Development in October 2002 and their Associate Dean for the School of Arts and Social Sciences and their Associate Director for the Centre for Public Policy in April 2003. The University of Northumbria also has invited Ambassador Andrew Young to accept an honorary degree.

The Government Performance Project. Katherine Willoughby, Principle Investigator. A national effort funded by the Pew Charitable Trust, through the University of Richmond, to assess the management capacity of the American states. (September 2001-August 2005, $135,000)

Robert Moore coordinated the school's development of FY04 New Funding Proposal that resulted in new funding for PAUS graduate student support. ($107,000)

Katherine Willoughby (with Julia Melkers) has been awarded a grant from the IBM Business of Government. They will prepare a report regarding performance measurement application in governments, based on their survey data and GASB case assessments. ($15,000)

Under Review

Portal to the City of Atlanta -- Joint Georgia State University-City of Atlanta project. John C. Thomas. Letter of inquiry to Alfred P. Sloan Foundation. (proposal under review)

Project Management

Laura Henderson serves as Co-Manager of the Georgia Early Childhood Study, funded as the Longitudinal Evaluation of the Georgia Prekindergarten (Pre-K) Program by the Georgia Office of School Readiness. Bentley Ponder is the other Co-Manager; Gary Henry is Principal Investigator. The study is designed to determine the impact of various types of preschool experiences on children's future school success. These experiences include children who were enrolled in one of three types of early childhood programs: Georgia's Prekindergarten Program (Georgia Pre-K), Head Start, or other full-day preschool program, and children with no formal preschool experience. The children are currently in first grade. Data collection efforts include: individualized standardized assessments with the sampled children in key developmental areas, teachers' and parents' assessments of children's skills and behaviors, classroom observations of quality environments, surveys with teachers and administrators regarding early childhood education, and surveys with parents about preschool arrangements and family demographics.

Visitors

John C. Thomas and David Edwards, Program Management Officer in the office of Atlanta Mayor Shirley Franklin, co-hosted a visit to Atlanta on August 21 by Dr. Ted Greenwood, a Program Director with the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation in New York City. Dr. Greenwood was here to discuss a possible grant to GSU and the City of Atlanta under the Sloan Foundation's program in Performance Assessment of Municipal Governments. Thomas and Edwards are seeking a Sloan grant to assist in the development of an online complaint system that would enable Atlanta residents to (1) report complaints on municipal services, (2) check on whether others had made the same complaints, and (3) monitor responses to those complaints by City Hall. The visit included a meeting with Mayor Franklin.

Domestic Programs

Domestic Programs is home to several separate programs and activities, many of which are described in detail elsewhere in this report. Some of these programs link the college with the community. The other activities and projects aim to inform the debate on public policy in the metropolitan Atlanta area, the state of Georgia, and the nation through research and education. The issues that are addressed include those associated with the structure of urban area, government tax and expenditure policy, education, program evaluation, social policies, and economic development. Some of the specific topics include the evaluation of pre-K programs, analysis of the transition from welfare to work, studies of teacher retention, a multi-year study of public housing transformation, and studies of the labor market opportunities of low-skilled workers. Domestic Programs also houses the Georgia Poll, a quarterly public opinion poll of Georgia residents, and Atlanta Census 2000 — a portal that allows easy mapping of census data. Funding comes from a variety of governmental, foundation, and business sources. David L. Sjoquist is the Director of Domestic Programs.

Domestic Programs has extensive experience in measuring performance of programs in areas as diverse as education, transportation, and information systems. The evaluation and policy analysis projects have included many studies of educational programs. The office's work in analyzing the effects of Georgia's innovative HOPE Scholarship and in evaluating the nation's first universal pre-kindergarten program has brought national attention. Evaluations conducted by the office's staff range from large-scale statewide and national programs to school based innovations.

Activities

The Fiscal Research Center provides nonpartisan research, technical assistance and education in the evaluation and design of state and local fiscal and economic policy, including both tax and expenditure issues. (See the Fiscal Research Center section of this report.)

The Neighborhood Collaborative project, an extension of the Atlanta Project started by the Carter Center, provides the University with a means of enhancing research, teaching and service through more effective partnerships with its urban environment and neighborhoods. (See the Neighborhood Collaborative section of this report.)

The Office of Community Outreach and Partnerships (OCOP) serves as vehicle for linking the University's resources, students and faculty to the community through coordinated outreach activities. As part of the university reorganization, OCOP continues its work under the direction of the GSU Office of the Provost. (See the Office of Community Outreach and Partnerships section of this report.)

The Nonprofit Group is devoted to informing the discussion of policy issues confronting nonprofit organizations in the Southeast. (See the Nonprofit Studies Program section of this report.)

Research Atlanta is a private not-for-profit public policy research organization that studies public policy issues affecting the metropolitan Atlanta region. (See the Research Atlanta section of this report.)

AtlantaCensus 2000 is a collaborative effort between the Atlanta Regional Commission and the Fiscal Research Center to support a Web site that provides access to the 1990 and 2000 Censuses of Population and Housing, allows the creation of maps, and contains reports focused on the Atlanta region.

Atlanta Outreach Consortium is an inter-university collective working to bridge community outreach and service-learning programs at Clark Atlanta University, Emory University, Georgia Institute of Technology, and Georgia State University. Domestic Programs houses the Director of the AOC.

The Educational Policy Group provides research and recommendation on issues related to education policy in Georgia.

The Georgia Administrative Data Project involves the development of a database built on the unemployment insurance records from the Georgia Department of Labor and welfare records for the Georgia Department of Human Resources.

Inter-University Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR), a national repository of data housed at the University of Michigan, maintains and provides access to a vast archive of social science data for research and instruction and offers training in quantitative methods to facilitate effective data use. Domestic Programs served as the Georgia State University representative to ICPSR. In 2003 this responsibility was transferred to the Pullen Library.

Regional Leadership Forum (RLF) is a Metro Atlanta citizens organization dedicated to creating discussions by citizens and leaders about the future of the Atlanta region. Although independent, RLF is housed at the Andrew Young School, which partners with RLF.

Survey Research and the Georgia Poll provides data collection and expertise in data management, study design, and project management. The Survey Research Lab has worked on projects varying widely in size, scope, methodology, and complexity, ranging from collecting the opinions of students within Georgia State University to conducting national public opinion surveys.

The Urban-Regional Policy Group provides research and recommendation on issues related to urban and regional policy in Georgia.

Projects

Title II Teacher Quality. Darleen Opfer. The evaluation team worked with various stakeholders to develop measures for each of the program objectives, then gathered data on these measures and presented a plan for obtaining data on the measures that were not currently being collected. Georgia Board of Regents. ($28,160)

Georgia Teacher Quality. Darleen Opfer. Funded by the Board of Regents, this project facilitates increases in student achievement by locating a qualified teacher in every Georgia public classroom by 2006. ($88,463)

The Marriage Solution. Dana Rickman. As part of the Young Scholars Research Program, this project is an analysis of the influence of marriage policies on former welfare recipients in seven states. ($20,991)

Communities in Schools of Atlanta Evaluation Consulting (CISA). Mark Rivera and Craig Gordon. Semi-structured interviews, focus groups, and a document review are being conducted to develop recommendations for improvements to the CISA evaluation plan and reporting practices. The CISA program aims to help reduce absenteeism in schools and to provide caseload assistance to children and families with need. ($4,315)

Ride Quality Thresholds from the Motorist's Perspective. Theodore Poister. This research is designed to learn more about Pennsylvania motorists' satisfaction or dissatisfaction with the highways they drive on and the basis upon which they rate these highways. Using a detailed telephone survey of motorists in eight counties, this research will provide the Department of Transportation with a better understanding of its customers' concerns regarding highway maintenance issues. Based on this information, the project will also pilot a revised mail-out survey instrument for soliciting customer feedback annually on a statewide basis. Pennsylvania State. ($190,580)

Office of School Readiness: Registry Project. Gary T. Henry and Judith Ottoson. The project offers accurate data on children's Pre-K experiences and provides a base for future research and evaluation. The project conducted for the Office of School Readiness consists of three major data components: class rosters, lead teacher credentials, and resource coordinator reports. The project is in its fourth and final year. ($776,252)

Georgia State Poll 2003: 4 Random Digit Dial Telephone Surveys. Charlotte Steeh. Four times a year the SRL conducts this survey of 800 Georgia residents on topics of current interest. Various groups and organizations that purchase question time fund the Poll. Participating organizations in 2003 included the Atlanta Regional Commission, Georgia Department of Transportation, Community Foundation, and the Georgia Office of Consumer Affairs. ($40,416)

Performance Outcome Measures Project: Georgia Division of Aging. Charlotte Steeh. For the third year, the Georgia Division of Aging Services participated in a national evaluation coordinated by Westat to learn how in-home services have helped those who receive them and how satisfied clients are with their care. Approximately 366 telephone interviews were conducted with a sample of clients who received Personal Support Services during the previous six months and with an independent sample of 353 caregivers. ($49,480)

North Carolina Teacher and Principal Surveys. Mail Surveys. Charlotte Steeh and Dana Rickman. For a third year, North Carolina teachers and principals provided information on a variety of topics including teachers' professional development, principals' leadership, interactions with parents, and performance of schools within the state. Results are presented in a report by the Governor that gauges the progress of North Carolina in becoming one of the top ten states in education performance in the nation. North Carolina's Education Research Council. ($44,606, $126,625)

Blood Donation Decision 2. Charlotte Steeh. This national telephone survey of 500 people who had not donated blood in the last few years was a follow-up to the pioneering effort of 2001 that was sponsored by the Winship Cancer Institute at Emory University and funded by the National Blood Foundation. In addition to asking why respondents had not donated blood in the past, the questionnaire examined decisions about blood donation that were made after the attacks of September 11, 2001. For comparison, some limited data were also collected from people who had recently donated blood. ($24,514)

A Comparison of RDD and Cell Phone Surveys. Charlotte Steeh. Since very little research has examined the impact on surveys of the exploding growth of wireless communication devices, this study assesses the extent to which these devices are likely to change telephone surveys. Results from two national surveys, one using the usual list-assisted RDD sample and the other employing a sample of mobile telephone numbers, are being compared. The analyses look for significant differences between surveys along four dimensions—coverage, nonresponse, data quality, and relationships among variables. Methodological factors, such as the number of attempts, the percentage of sample numbers whose status as working or nonworking is indeterminate, and the effects of caller-id, are also explored. The basic hypothesis underlying all analyses is that there are major differences between the two modes along each dimension. ($176,296)

Child Care Worker. Gary Henry. This study assists the Urban Institute in the examination of the state of childcare worker compensation in Georgia. ($24,994)

Evaluation of Metro Atlanta Partnership for Visual Arts and Learning (MAP) teacher professional development program. Gary T. Henry with Mark Rivera. A central goal of the Metro Atlanta Partnership for Visual Arts and Learning (MAP) is to equip educators in two metro Atlanta school systems to use the High Museum of Art's innovative reinstallation of its permanent collection as a tool for improving student literacy. Key objectives include a) providing substantive content; b) implementing a field-tested model to develop teacher mastery of new content and approaches; and c) using a classroom-based pedagogical focus to ensure the effective translation of new material. As the external evaluator, staff conduct surveys, focus groups, interviews, and observations to identify strategies for program improvement, assess the impact of MAP on teacher and student success, and determine if there is a "scale-up" impact on nonparticipating teachers and students at the same schools. This led to a request by the High Museum of Art to develop an evaluation plan for the newly endowed Goizueta Foundation Teacher Institute for Visual Arts and Learning which will draw on MAP evaluation research findings and include an ongoing evaluation research component. Metro Atlanta Partnership for Visual Arts and Learning. ($78,503)

Studies of Pre-K Programs in Georgia. Gary T. Henry. There are two current longitudinal studies evaluating early childhood programs across the state of Georgia. The first longitudinal study is a five-year evaluation of Georgia's Pre-Kindergarten (Pre-K) Program. This study followed a probability sample of over 3,000 four-year-olds from 203 Pre-K classes selected from across the state. Student outcomes, including teacher assessments of academic and behavioral skills and promotion, have been collected and analyzed annually. Current efforts are focused on analyzing data and report writing from the fifth year data collection. Previous years' reports are among the most downloaded documents from the Web site.

The second longitudinal study, also known as the Georgia Early Childhood Study, began in July 2001. This study samples approximately 650 children participating in a variety of preschool settings, including Pre-K, Head Start, and other preschool facilities serving four-year-olds. This study will help determine the impact of the various types of preschool experiences on children's future school success, as well as investigate the reasons behind parents' choices for child care arrangements. Children will be followed into the first grade. Each year, data collection efforts will include: individualized standardized assessments with sampled children in key developmental areas, teachers' and parents' assessments of children's skills and behaviors, classroom observations rating the quality of the classroom environments, surveys with teachers and program directors regarding early childhood education, and surveys with parents about preschool arrangements and family demographics. Laura Henderson and Bentley Ponder co-manage the Georgia Early Childhood Study.

The Office of School Readiness funds both of these projects, with the current year's funding set at $385,111. Total funding for the two projects is $2,051,892.

Preparing Teachers for Technology (PT3). Gary T. Henry. This project addresses the need for preparing new teachers for the best use of technology in the classroom and increasing their use of technology within the existing curriculum. In addition to increasing opportunities for mentorship and collaboration, the program strives to set student standards for technology proficiency and collaboration at all levels of education. As the PT3 Evaluator, staff will assess implementation and impact on participating pre-service teachers and in-service teachers to determine the extent of preparation provided to PT3 teachers to use technology in the classroom, and their teaching efficacy beliefs regarding the use of technology in the classroom. Mark Rivera served as the evaluation project director. College of Education/U.S. Department of Education. ($89,965)

State Educational Policy. Gary T. Henry. This project engages knowledgeable policy scholars with faculty throughout the South at two conferences focused on innovations in state-level educational policy. This project is in response to the Spencer Foundation's Southern Initiative and proposes to begin a long-term research program on the influences on and impacts of state educational policymaking. ($50,000)

Comparative Study of the Effects of High Stakes Accountability on Teacher Professional Development. Gary T. Henry. Spencer Foundation. ($210,000)

Understanding the Impact of Preschool Policy. Gary T. Henry. This project studies the impact of alternative types of preschool and other childcare and expands the work of the Early Childhood Study (ECS), which began in 2001. This project is funded by the National Institute for Early Education Research at Rutgers University. ($199,845)

Preschool Policy Research. Gary T. Henry. This project addresses issues in early childhood policy and the provisions of preschool and childcare. Research includes data collected from the Georgia Pre-K Longitudinal Study, which began in 1996-97. The longitudinal study includes over 3,000 participants during the first four years of formal education. This project is funded by the National Institute for Early Education Research at Rutgers University. ($36,482)

Environmental Policy Program

The Environmental Policy Program is a major research and training center that has the objective of enhancing the quality of environmental policy in the state, the nation and in countries throughout the world. Engaged in scholarly research projects focused on water resources, environmental and natural resources policy and management, the Program has provided policy advice to the government and private sectors since 1993.

The Program has established collaborative partnerships between other universities and organizations that include Oak Ridge National Laboratory, as well as the University of Georgia and Emory University. The Program's water resources consortium, the Georgia Water Planning & Policy Center, include partnerships with Albany State University (Flint River Water Planning & Policy Center), Georgia Southern University (Coastal Rivers Water Planning & Policy Center) and Georgia State University (North Georgia Water Planning & Policy Center, housed in the Environmental Policy Program). Each university center includes a research program and an academic program in Water Resources Management and Policy. The programs are available via videoconferencing and Internet technologies, offered in the evenings to accommodate the working student and career professionals.

Other major research areas in the Program include the management of Brownfields and the study of economic behavior in various policy settings. The Experimental Economics Laboratory maintains research and academic training in experimental economics. Degrees in Economics offer specializations in Environmental Policy, and culminate with a Ph.D. in Economics, with a specialization in Environmental Policy. Ronald G. Cummings is the Program's Director.

Programs

Brownfields Program. The Brownfields Project assists policymakers with new ideas in the economic management of revitalizing toxic industrial sites. The project uses a unique database of commercial and industrial properties in Atlanta to quantify the reduced economic potential of Brownfields and their possible spillover effects onto surrounding properties in the most comprehensive manner possible, and to disseminate this information in a manner that is accessible to policy makers, community leaders, and all stakeholders.

Joint Research with Georgia Southern University. Continued development of academic and certificate training programs in Water and Natural Resources Management with the Coastal Rivers Water Planning and Policy Center.

Joint Research with Albany State University. Continuation of development of graduate and certificate training programs in Water and Natural Resources Management with the Flint River Water Planning and Policy Center.

Environmental Damage Assessment Program. This program is focused on the development and application of innovative methods for assessing the value of environmental systems.

Proposals Under Review

A Pilot Project For An Offset Banking Program in Georgia. (Georgia Research Alliance Eminent Scholar Challenge Grant) M. Bruce Beck (University of Georgia) and Ronald G. Cummings. Offset banking offers a means for achieving water quality standards at minimum cost by pairing high cost with low cost polluters in the design of a market system, approved by the EPA, to fit the ecological and economic needs of a region. ($50,000)

Altruism Spillovers: Does Laboratory Behavior Predict Charitable Giving? (National Science Foundation). Susan K. Laury and Laura O. Taylor. ($107,563)

Collaborative Research: Evaluating Payments for the Private Provision of Environmental Services. (National Science Foundation) Paul Ferraro, two-year project. Based on the advice of economists, conservation payments have become an increasingly popular policy instrument in both developed and developing nations to conserve ecosystems. The project will address the effectiveness of conservation payments through a rigorous and systematic empirical evaluation with a multi-disciplinary team of two economists and one forestry biometrician/GIS specialist. ($211,890)

The Environmental and Experimental Economics Laboratory

With support from the Georgia Research Alliance, The Environmental & Experimental Economics Laboratory is a state-of-the-art facility unique to the Southeast. It functions as a research center to assist in determining valuations for environmental damages, assessing market values for non-renewable resources and projecting future economic resource needs. Its primary use is for studies that focus on critical behavioral relationships between policy rules, individual perceptions of the incentives associated with these rules, and outcomes. Ronald G. Cummings is the Director of the Environmental & Experimental Economics Laboratory.

The lab provides a facility for research and teaching in the areas of environmental regulation compliance, non-market valuation, a transition to the use of markets, and collective decisions in the management of environmental resources. Critical policy questions concern the response of individuals to proposed policy initiatives. Through the laboratory, users gain insights into the impact of the use of markets for the trading of emissions and the extent of compliance with environmental regulations. The laboratory also allows evaluation of methods of obtaining individual valuation of environmental resources. For example, in the area of Fiscal Policy, it provides a means of testing the behavioral aspects of various programs designed to enhance tax compliance and of investigating the conditions under which voluntary contributions will be successful in providing collective goods.

The Portable Lab

The Portable Laboratory consists of 30 Pentium notebook subject stations, a notebook server and portable hubs. With travel cases designed specifically to transport the facility, staff can easily conduct laboratory experiments throughout the nation and abroad.

Laboratory Activities and Visitors

Ron Cummings demonstrated the Portable Lab at Southern Polytechnic University in Marietta, Ga., at the invitation of Professor Sandra Vasa-Sideris to introduce her class in public policy to the use of experimental methods in the study of policy design, February 20, 2003.

Susan Laury and Laura Taylor conducted Public Goods Experiments, February 26, 2003.

Susan Laury conducted experiments with 16 participants for two sessions, March 11, 2003.

Paul Ferraro conducted a series of experiments on group decision-making with 160 GSU students from April 1-10, 2003. The experiments were designed to understand behavior in a common experiment in which laboratory subjects could make substantially more money if they cooperate, but each has a private incentive to free-ride on the cooperation of others. The experiment was designed to distinguish altruistic motives and strategic motives for cooperation from decision-making errors.

Susan Laury, Laura Taylor and Ron Cummings conducted five sets of environmental evaluation experiments with a visiting Ph.D. student from Indiana University, April 3-4, 2003. The project is called "Altruism Spillovers," and a grant was submitted to the NSF based on the preliminary research results. A paper will be presented by Susan Laury at the American Economics Association meetings in San Diego, January 3, 2004.

Ragan Petrie conducted a series of experiments on trust with 182 GSU students in spring and fall 2003. The experiments are designed to understand whom we choose to trust and if we differentiate trust based on gender or race. By using digital photographs of subjects and varying who in the two-person trust game is seen, the experiments allow us to tease apart if trust is due to preferences or mislaid expectations on another person's trustworthiness.

Ron Cummings, Laura Taylor and Paul Ferraro made presentations to Arthur M. Blank Foundation representatives on environmental research needs in Georgia demonstrating how experimental economics and our faculty expertise play a role in problem solving, June 2003.

Ron Cummings conducted a set of tax compliance experiments to 16 Indonesian professionals taking training in tax policy to give them "hands-on" experience with effects of alternative tax policies on tax compliance, July 3, 2003.

Ron Cummings met with Dr. Priscilla Oliver, Georgia Environmental Protection Agency, to demonstrate the Laboratory and experimental economic theories to seven college interns, August 2003.

Laura Taylor with Mark Morrison (visiting from Charles Sturt University in New South Wales, Australia) conducted 33 in-class experiments with the help of Ikuho Kochi, Peter Grigelis, Angela Todd, and Jennifer Adams, from August 22-October 10, 2003. The experiments were part of the research conducted as part of the U.S. EPA grant, "Experimental Tests of Provisions Rules."

Paul Ferraro met with Flint River Water Planning and Policy Center personnel, Drs. Virgil and Nancy Norton, to establish a research agenda for the rehabilitation of the Chickasawhatchee Swamp in southern Georgia.

Ragan Petrie and Susan Laury met with Professor Andy Keeler from the University of Georgia to collaborate on an experimental idea on testing upstream and downstream mechanisms for pollution control, October 29.

Fiscal Research Center

The Fiscal Research Center (FRC) provides nonpartisan research, technical assistance and education in the evaluation and design of state and local fiscal and economic policy, including both tax and expenditure issues. The FRC mission is to promote the development of sound public policy and public understanding of issues concerning state and local governments. Established in 1995, the program helps provide information to state and local governments so they can make informed decisions about complex fiscal issues. The program has a full-time staff and affiliated faculty from throughout Georgia State University and elsewhere who lead its research projects.

One of the objectives of the FRC is to help inform and stimulate debate on fiscal policy. The Center publishes Policy Briefs, which are widely distributed summaries of longer reports, as well as essays on issues confronting the state. The program also organizes periodic Seminars, Workshops, Luncheons and Conferences during which fiscal policy makers, administrators, and faculty discuss fiscal policy issues. David L. Sjoquist is Director of the Fiscal Research Center, and Sally Wallace is Associate Director.

Research Agenda

The research agenda of the Fiscal Research Program is composed of three broad categories: Intergovernmental Issues, Tax Policy, and the Georgia Economy. Each category is comprised of a set of projects that are FRC focus areas for state policy. Lead researchers for each project are identified.

Intergovernmental Issues:

Education Finance Project. Explores issues associated with education financing and delivery of education in Georgia.

Georgia Intergovernmental Forum. Explores issues inherent in relationships between state and local governments.

Tax and Expenditure Policy:

Business Tax Project. Addresses the taxation of banking, insurance, and corporations.

Income Tax Project. Analyzes the structure and impact of income taxation.

Property Tax Project. Focuses on the structure, administration, and effects of property taxation.

Sales and Excise Tax Project. Studies of the structure, administration, and effects of sales and excise taxation.

Tax Modeling Project. Involves the development of a sophisticated computer-based model for use in the analysis of tax policy proposals.

Telecommunication/Public Utilities Project. Focuses on alternatives in the taxation of public utilities.

State Budget Project. Concerns policy issues associated with government budgeting.

The Georgia Economy:

Economic Development Project. Addresses the many issues relevant to the state's economic development efforts.

Georgia Data Project. Involves development of a database built on the Unemployment Insurance records from the Department of Labor, welfare records for the Department of Human Resources, and other agency databases.

Georgia Economy Project. Studies various sectors and aspects of the Georgia economy such as banking, changes in the distribution of income, and changes in the location of retail sales.

Reports

Georgia's Taxes: A Summary of Major State and Local Government Taxes, 9th Edition. Jack Morton and Richard Hawkins. A handbook on taxation that provides a quick overview of all state and local taxes in Georgia. January 2003.

An Analysis of a Proposed New Economic Development Incentive. Kelly D. Edmiston, David L. Sjoquist and Jeanie Thomas. This report evaluates the likely impact of changing Georgia's economic development tax incentive program. January 2003.

Twelve Years of Budget Growth: Where Has The Money Gone? Alan Essig. This report analyzes the growth in the state budget over the past 12 years and identifies specific policy decisions that caused and resulted in changes in budget. July 2003.

Local Government Competition for Economic Development. Kelly D. Edmiston and Geoffrey K. Turnbull. This report examines the factors driving community tax incentives for industry recruitment. July 2003.

The Economic Impacts of Environmentally Contaminated Sites on Commercial and Industrial Property Markets in Atlanta, Georgia. Laura O. Taylor. This report analyzes the impacts environmentally contaminated sites have on surrounding property values in Atlanta, Ga., and examines the feasibility of a tax-increment financing program to fund clean-up of affected sites. July 2003.

Getting Serious About Property Tax Reform in Georgia. David L. Sjoquist. This report lists problems with the property tax in Georgia and outlines a set of policy options for reforming the property tax. August 2003.

The Commercial Music Industry in Atlanta and the State of Georgia: An Economic Impact Study. Kelly D. Edmiston and Marcus X. Thomas. This report measures the commercial music industry's economic impact on Atlanta and the State of Georgia. August 2003.

Single-Factor Sales Apportionment Formula in Georgia. What Is the NET Revenue Effect? Kelly D. Edmiston. This report provides an update of the static revenue loss and provides estimates of the indirect revenue effects from switching to a single factor sales apportionment formula. October 2003.

Financing Georgia's Schools: A Primer. Ross Rubenstein and David L. Sjoquist. This report provides an explanation of how K-12 education is financed in Georgia. October 2003.

The Economics of Cigarette Taxation: Lessons for Georgia. Bruce A. Seaman. This report provides estimates of the fiscal effects of increasing taxes on cigarettes. November 2003.

International Trade and Economic Development Strategy: Can Foreign Direct Investment Be Predicted? Bruce A. Seaman and Robert E. Moore. This study identifies factors that might be used by the state to better target foreign industries and countries that are more likely to be seeking investment opportunities in the U.S. December 2003.

Research and Briefing Memoranda

The Fiscal Impact is distributed to the State of Georgia General Assembly and staff. During 2003, The Fiscal Impact covered these topics:

- The Bush Administration Economic Stimulus Plan: Its Impact on Georgia
- Per Capita Income for States in the Southeast Region (1969-2000)
- Georgia's Revenue Sources for County and City Government
- Education Spending Per Pupil in Georgia
- Effective County Millage Rates
- Estimated Loss of Revenues from Selected Changes in the Sales Tax
- Estimated Loss of Revenues from Selected Changes in the Property Tax

Georgia Budget Notes is also distributed to the State of Georgia General Assembly and staff. During 2003, Georgia Budget Notes covered these topics:

- FY 2004 Budget Brief
- FY 2004 Revenue Estimates
- Medicaid Overview
- Peachcare
- FY 2004 and FY 2004 Department of Community Health Medicaid Budget Proposals
- State Employment
- Budget Brief: Per Capita Taxes and Income

Additional research results and published memoranda are published as a part of the Atlanta Census 2000 project. During 2003, Atlanta Census 2000 published these reports:

- Geography of Race
- Geography of Age
- Geography of Household
- Geography of Income
- Residential Mobility in the Atlanta Region
- The 2000 Journey to Work in the Atlanta Region
- Geography of Poverty

FRC staff and associated faculty prepared the following Briefing Memoranda:

Analysis of Mixed Drink Fee and Tax Exemption for Underground Atlanta. John Matthews and William Smith

Coupling Georgia Income Tax to Federal Standard Deduction and Personal Exemption. Sally Wallace

Fiscal Issues Associated with SSTP. David L. Sjoquist

Fiscal Note: Film Incentives Legislation. Kelly D. Edmiston

Number of Georgia Income Taxpayers With Children. Sally Wallace

Payment in Lieu of Property Taxes. David L. Sjoquist

Potential Revenue Enhancement Options. David L. Sjoquist

Revenue Analysis: An Estimate of the Revenue Loss From the Elimination of the Income Tax on Capital Gains. Sally Wallace

Revenue From Removing Selected Sales Tax Exemptions. David L. Sjoquist

Single-Factor Sales Apportionment Formula in Georgia: What is the NET Revenue Effect? Kelly D. Edmiston

Taxation and the Elderly. Sally Wallace

Visitors and Other Activities

The Fiscal Research Center was happy to host visiting scholars who traveled to Georgia State University to conduct research.

Richard Hawkins (Assistant Professor, Department of Marketing and Economics at the University of West Florida) visited during the year. He worked with the Fiscal Research Program on projects of fiscal importance and the Ninth Edition of “Georgia Taxes: A Summary of Major State and Local Government Taxes.”

The Fiscal Research Center participated in several presentations to international visitors to the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies. Visitors learned about various economic development research conducted in the FRC and the Young School.

The FRC hosted seminars and visiting lecturers on the following subjects:

Andy Reschovsky (University of Wisconsin) spoke on adequacy of school finance, January 2003.

Michael Stoll (University of California) spoke on urban labor markets, geographic skills mismatch, job skills, and race, February 2003.

David Figlio (University of Florida) spoke on the consequences of school accountability, testing crime and punishment, February 2003.

In September, the Fiscal Research Program co-sponsored with the Urban and Regional Group, conference on “Current Issues in Urban and Real Estate Economics.” Participants included a select group of informed individuals including representatives from government, the private sector, and academia. Discussants included:

- Jan Brueckner (University of Illinois)
- Peter Colwell (University of Illinois)
- Jonathan Dombrow (University of Illinois)
- Alan Gelfand (Duke University)
- Allen Goodman (Wayne State University)
- Donald Haurin (Ohio State University)
- Harold Munneke (University of Georgia)
- Henry Pollakowski (Massachusetts Institute of Technology)
- C.F. Sirmans (University of Connecticut)
- Thomas Thibodeau (Southern Methodist University)
- Geoffrey Turnbull (Georgia State University)

Projects

African American Philanthropy. David L. Sjoquist. Funded by the Community Foundation, this project identifies trends in social capital related to philanthropy in Metro Atlanta. ($24,000)

Analysis of Georgia Tobacco Taxes. David L. Sjoquist. Funded by Georgia Healthcare, this project looks at the effects of taxation on cigarettes. ($5,000)

Analysis of Strategic Management. Theodore Poister. Funded by the Georgia Department of Transportation (GDOT), this project analyzes performance monitoring, reporting systems, and management practices of the GDOT comparative case studies of three other state DOTs. ($221,250)

Atlanta Outreach Consortium. David L. Sjoquist. The collaborative activity is supported with funding from Clark Atlanta University, Emory University, Georgia Institute of Technology, and Georgia State University. ($37,500)

Enhance Atlanta Census. David L. Sjoquist. Funded by the Community Foundation, this project further develops the Atlanta Census 2000 Web site in cooperation with the Atlanta Regional Commission. ($9,000)

Evaluation of Performance and Impact of HOPE VI Community Revitalization (Harris Homes). David L. Sjoquist, James Wolk, Fred Brooks, and Sally Wallace. This project will conduct a comprehensive evaluation of the impact of the HOPE VI revitalization program at Harris Homes for the Housing Authority of the City of Atlanta, Georgia. ($491,937)

Film and Video Impact Study. David L. Sjoquist. Funded by the Georgia Department of Industry, Trade and Tourism, this project examines the impact of the commercial music industry on Atlanta and the State of Georgia. ($4,500)

Framework for Forecasting Welfare Caseloads in Georgia. David L. Sjoquist and Shiferaw Gurmu . This project, being conducted for the Georgia Department of Human Resources, proposes alternative modeling approaches to the development of a framework for generating monthly and quarterly forecasts of welfare caseloads in Georgia. ($17,169)

Welfare to Work Dynamics. Julie L. Hotchkiss. Funded by the University of Baltimore, Maryland, this grant supports research on evaluation of the transition from welfare to work. ($80,000)

Technical Assistance

The FRC staff and associated faculty provided technical assistance to numerous government officials and agencies. These included:

- Georgia Governor's Office
- Senate Research Office
- Office of Planning and Budget
- Georgia Occupational Review Council
- Georgia Governor's Education Review Commission
- Senate Insurance Committee
- House Insurance Committee
- House Insurance Premium Study Committee
- Georgia Department of Human Resources
- Georgia Department of Labor
- Armstrong State University
- State of Georgia Budgetary Responsibility Oversight Committee
- Joint Study Committee on Franchise Fees and Conditions, Rights of Way, and Tax Implications of Competitive Markets

- Technical Advisory Council (TAC) to the Georgia Rural Development Council
- Georgia Quality Growth Partnership (and its Legislative Committee)
- Georgia Economic Developers Association
- University of Georgia
- Board of Regents
- Georgia Department of Revenue
- City of Atlanta
- Georgia Municipal Association
- Georgia Department of Industry, Trade and Tourism
- Senate Appropriations Committee
- Senate Finance Committee
- House Ways and Means Committee
- Commission for a New Georgia, Rural Development Council
- Association County Commissioners of Georgia

In addition, Alan Essig served as staff director for the State of Georgia House of Representative's Appropriations Committee. Jeanie Thomas and Benjamin Scafidi served as policy staff for the State of Georgia Governor's Office.

Georgia Health Policy Center

The Health Policy Center's fundamental mission is to improve health status in communities by developing recommendations and implementation strategies to improve health care quality, access, and cost. Through research, policy development, program design and implementation, and evaluation, Center staff, University faculty, and representatives of collaborating organizations assist in the formulation of health care policy at the state and national levels. Through its Child Policy Initiative, the Center also addresses children's policy issues beyond health care. The 2003 projects of the Health Policy Center included the following program areas: children's health and well-being, community health system development, evaluation, grants management, healthcare coverage, and long-term care. Karen Minyard is the Director of the Health Policy Center.

Programs and Projects

Child Well-Being

The Child Policy Initiative aims to improve child policy in Georgia through applied research and analysis. The Initiative's current efforts relate to child poverty, children's health policy, childcare and early learning, and child protective services. The Initiative provides analysis of existing policies and future options, research into best practices, and objective facilitation and support for state agencies involved in children's policy. Monica Herk manages the Child Policy Initiative.

Grant from the United Parcel Service Foundation. Monica Herk. The Child Policy Initiative received a follow-up grant from the United Parcel Service Foundation to support its work on children's policy. The program contributes to scientific knowledge about children and to the policies that guide children's programs in Georgia. ($62,500)

Health Needs of Foster Children. Monica Herk, Katherine Gardner, Martha Nunez, and Bernette McColley. This project will analyze Medicaid and PeachCare claims data to determine gaps and duplications in Georgia's provision of health care services to foster children. ($20,000)

Oral Health Data Project. Monica Herk and Katherine Gardner. This project provides claims data analysis for the Georgia Oral Health Prevention Program and consulting to Division of Public Health staff. ($16,486)

Community Health Systems Development

Community Health Systems Development is a state- and national-level program designed to: (1) assure rural residents access to primary health care services in the communities in which they live; (2) improve health status of rural communities; and (3) help rural health systems fully participate in networks and thrive as health care delivery becomes increasingly competitive. The Health Policy Center has assembled a team of rural health experts who provide tailored technical assistance, facilitation, mediation, and consultation to participating communities. Collectively, the team has experience in community development, clinical medicine, behavioral health, hospital financing, strategic planning, economics, managed care, and organizational development. The program deliverables include working with 19 networks in Georgia and 60 in other states; developing financial, clinical, and governance leaders; profiling rural community health systems; facilitating healthcare strategic planning processes; providing education from program learnings; and participating in state level rural health system policy making. Tina Anderson Smith manages the Community Health Systems Development program.

Access Georgia Rural Health Matching Grants Initiative. Tina Anderson Smith. The Rural Health Matching Grants Initiative is a two-year initiative of the Philanthropic Collaborative for a Healthy Georgia, the Georgia Department of Community Health, and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. This rural health initiative focuses on making grants to improve access and health status and reducing health disparities for underserved populations in rural areas. The Georgia Health Policy Center manages these grants and provides tailored technical assistance to the nine grant recipients ranging from leadership to strategic planning to mediation to the development of quality assurance mechanisms. (Two years, $2,000,000)

Central Georgia Cancer Coalition. Chris Parker. The Central Georgia Cancer Coalition is a 30-month initiative to assist Community Health Works (a rural health network in Central Georgia) with the planning and development of a Regional Program of Excellence in Central Georgia. The deliverables of this project consist of the establishment of a multi-disciplinary team of experts to assist in the planning and oversight of the program, definition of the scope and methodology of the project, information gathering and dissemination, and facilitation of meetings. (30 months, $120,000)

DCH/ORHS Network Board Development. Tina Anderson Smith. The network board development project is accomplished in partnership with the Fanning Institute for Leadership at the University of Georgia in Athens. The purpose of this project is to provide training and education to the coordinators and governing bodies of the rural health networks funded by the Office of Rural Health Services in the state. (One year, $20,000)

HIV/AIDS and STD Services for Young Women in Rural Georgia. Claudia Lacson and Tina Anderson Smith. The HIV/AIDS/STD project is a research study in partnership with the Centers for Disease Control to identify the issues influencing the access to, and utilization of, HIV/STD services and education for women residing in rural communities in Georgia. (One year, $45,000)

Networks for Rural Health. Tina Anderson Smith. Networks for Rural Health is a state level program designed to: (1) assure rural residents of Georgia access to primary health care services in the communities in which they live; and (2) help rural health systems fully participate in networks and thrive as health care delivery becomes increasingly competitive. The project deliverables include working with 19 networks; developing financial, clinical, and governance leaders; profiling rural community health systems; providing education from program learnings; and participating in state level rural health system policy making. (Two years, $750,000)

Rabun County Healthcare Strategic Planning. Claudia Lacson. The purpose of this project is to guide a community-wide healthcare system strategic planning process. The deliverables consist of assembling the leadership in the county, conducting key stakeholder interviews, collecting and analyzing demographic, health status, and socioeconomic data, understanding community perceptions, conducting a healthcare dollar flow analysis, identifying the scope of clinical services, and conducting a strategic planning retreat with community leaders. (Six months, $30,000)

Rural Health Network Technical Assistance Program (RHN TAP). Tina Anderson Smith. RHN TAP is an 18-month initiative designed to provide technical assistance to the 52 Rural Health Networks and eight Delta State Rural Health Networks funded by HRSA Office of Rural Health Policy in 30 states throughout the United States. The Health Policy Center has assembled a team of national rural health experts and consultants who provide tailored technical assistance, facilitation, mediation, and consultation to participating communities. (18 months, $1,000,000)

Evaluation

ACET Collaborative Team [ACT] Evaluation Project. Laura Henderson and Monica Herk. The ACT evaluation project is a multi-year process and outcome evaluation of a child care training and technical assistance project by the state of Georgia. The evaluation includes observations of classroom quality and focus groups and interviews with early childhood teachers statewide. (Year 2: $504,164, Year 3: $249,870)

Customer Service Surveys, Health Insurance Claims System. Monica Herk, Martha Nunez, Katherine Gardner, and Priscilla Heffelfinger. This project developed and analyzes an ongoing semi-annual customer satisfaction survey for users of the PeachCare and Medicaid computerized claims system. ($253,530)

Evaluation of Fire and Fall Prevention. Judith Ottoson and Mark Rivera. This project evaluates Remembering When: A Fire and Fall Prevention program for Older Adults. The program was developed jointly by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and the National Fire Protection Association. Initiated two years ago, the CDC seeks to understand the implementation process and program effects before a decision is made about a national program roll out. Control and experimental sites for the evaluation are in Virginia where the project is working cooperatively with local Area Agencies on Aging. (One year, $271,045)

Evaluation of Georgia's Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP). Monica Herk and Katherine Gardner. The Child Policy Initiative and Health Policy Center are analyzing data from Georgia's health insurance program to serve low-income children, PeachCare for Kids. The analyses assess the program's effectiveness in achieving several goals: improved access to insurance, improved access to primary care, access to high-quality health services, and better health outcomes. The effort includes original data collection through surveys of new enrollees and applicants and evaluation of health insurance claims data. Results support policy and program development at DMA, and also are reported to the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, to be combined with results of other state CHIP programs. ($173,812)

Evaluation of the Management Academy for Public Health. Judith Ottoson. This project serves to coordinate the internal and external evaluation of the Management Academy for Public Health at the University of North Carolina for the National Foundation for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. The program involves the training of frontline public health workers in management skills. It has potential as a prototype for national training of public health workers. (2000-2003, $24,965)

Evaluation of the National School Health Coordinator Leadership Institute. Judith Ottoson. The American Cancer Society developed the Institute in 1999 to facilitate school health coordination as part of a broad prevention strategy. Evaluation team members included Mark Rivera, research associate, and PAUS faculty members John Thomas and Greg Streib. The evaluation of the Institute outcomes has been a focus of this project, which involved on-site and followed surveys of participants over the three years of Institute implementation. Although the formal evaluation ended in 2003, the research team continues to work with the ACS to gather information from participants of Institute replication efforts conducted across the country. The team also conducted interviews and examined selected School Health Coordinator portfolios to identify instances where the Institute may have acted as a catalyst for other efforts. (Three years, $203,871)

National Diabetes Program-Evaluation. Judith Ottoson and Mark Rivera. This project funded by the Centers for Disease Control has developed a case study of five Diabetes Prevention and Control Centers which are successful in achieving national diabetes objectives. Using a "model of influence" developed by the Division of Diabetes Translation at the CDC, factors influencing the success of the centers have been identified, as well as additional proximal indicators. (One year, $147,316)

Grants and Special Projects Management

The Center partners with public and private grant makers to leverage federal, state, local, and philanthropic resources, empower local communities, and address priority health care problems. Mary Ann Phillips oversees grants and special projects management.

Improving Outreach and Utilization in PeachCare for Kids and Medicaid. Mary Ann Phillips. In the second year of this two-year contract, Health Policy Center staff coordinated activities related to enhancing the utilization of primary care services for children enrolled in the Department of Community Health's PeachCare for Kids and Medicaid programs. The activities included the development, review and approval of proposals for health providers and community-based organizations to improve utilization of health services by children enrolled in these public insurance programs. Grants were awarded to six community agencies around Georgia. Programs were monitored throughout the year. In addition to the work related to the utilization grantees, outreach materials were developed in both English and Spanish to explain some of the Department's programs. (Two years, $1,500,000)

Healthcare Georgia Foundation. Mary Ann Phillips. The Health Policy Center was awarded a grant from the Healthcare Georgia Foundation to enhance Georgia's school health capacity and to conduct research to inform Georgia's foundations about best options for collaborative work to address overweight children in Georgia. (Two years, $125,000)

Philanthropic Collaborative for a Healthy Georgia. Mary Ann Phillips. Representatives of the Georgia philanthropic and corporate foundation communities have joined forces to enhance the ability of foundations to identify, fund, and evaluate health grant-making opportunities throughout the state. The effort has become known as the Philanthropic Collaborative for a Healthy Georgia. The Health Policy Center serves as the administrative and technical home for the Collaborative. As a means of building a public/private partnership between the Georgia Department of Community Health and the foundations, the Department provided state money to be used as a match for foundations and communities in responding to mutually agreed upon priority health care needs. The Health Policy Center, in its role as coordinator of the activities of the Philanthropic Collaborative, serves as the liaison between the foundations and the Department of Community Health. During 2003, Center staff monitored and provided technical assistance to 13 communities receiving funds through the school health matching grants program; finalized a framework for assessing community-based cancer prevention and control efforts for Georgia; and coordinated the childhood obesity initiative with a goal of informing, engaging, and energizing Georgia's foundations to work towards reducing the incidence of childhood obesity in Georgia. ($50,000)

Health Care Coverage

*The Georgia Health Policy Center has been involved in projects examining health care coverage since it was invited by the Governor to participate in the Georgia Medicaid reform process of 1995. The Center has recently completed work with the Georgia Governor's Office of Planning and Budget on the initial phase of a State Planning Grant for the Uninsured, funded by the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA). Center personnel managed and participated with a data collection team that produced information on Georgia's uninsured population that was never before available. The Coverage Program draws from the expertise of individuals within all the other program areas at the Center and allows us to also include expert researchers from other colleges within the university. Personnel directing or participating in various coverage projects have included Karen Minyard, Mary Ann Phillips, Tina Anderson-Smith, and Glenn M. Landers.

Georgia Indigent Care Trust Fund Primary Care Evaluation. Glenn M. Landers. Under contract to the Georgia Department of Community Health, the Health Policy Center completed a three-year evaluation of participating hospitals' plans for, and uses of, the primary care portion of Indigent Care Trust Fund (ICTF) dollars. Georgia's ICTF represents the largest component of disproportionate share hospital payments distributed through Georgia Medicaid. Georgia is the only state that requires hospitals to allocate fifteen percent of its ICTF dollars to primary care services. Ninety-two hospitals participated in the program in 2003, accounting for almost $55,000,000 in primary care expenditures. The goal of this evaluation is to determine hospitals' compliance with policies and primary care plans, the degree to which ICTF dollars are having an impact on the health status of local communities, and whether or not eligible recipients are receiving services. ($242,900)

HRSA State Planning Grant for the Uninsured. Karen Minyard. The Center is currently managing the consensus building and modeling stage for the "HRSA State Planning Grant for the Uninsured," under contract with the Governor's Office of Planning and Budget, by and on behalf of U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' Health Resources Services Administration. This project will, for the first time, allow researchers to estimate with greater accuracy the burden of the uninsured across the state. The Center is also developing a strategic plan that will enable the state to address how it might contribute to the reduction in the number of the state's 1,000,000 uninsured residents. ($499,492)

Making Coverage for the Uninsured: The Role of Community Initiatives. This project is funded by the Commonwealth Fund and it is developed in partnership with Mathematica Policy Research. The purpose of this project is to understand how specific initiatives have developed and sustained financing to provide care for the uninsured. Three sites throughout the United States will be studied by the research team, interviews will be conducted with key stakeholders, and findings reported and published to inform policymakers and communities trying to replicate these projects. (Six months, $150,000)

Long-Term Care Partnership

The Center continued its relationship with the Center for Health Services Research at the Robinson College of Business in its Long-Term Care Partnership study. Under the direction of Principle Investigator James P. Cooney, Jr., center staff assisted with the analysis of Medicare and Medicaid claims data to assist the state of Georgia in evaluating the cost and care outcomes of institutional versus home and community-based services. Long-term care costs account for the largest percentage of annual Medicaid expenditures in Georgia, and program administrators are using the information products from the study to help determine how best to allocate state resources for the growing population in need of long-term care services. James P. Cooney, Jr. (RBC) and Glenn M. Landers. (GHPC) ($1,250,444)

International Studies Program

The mission of the International Studies Program (ISP) is to provide academic and technical training, research and technical assistance in support of sound public policy and sustainable economic growth in transition and developing economies. Jorge Martinez-Vazquez directs the International Studies Program.

Projects

Indonesia Masters Program. The Indonesian Masters Program graduated 20 more Indonesian students in June 2003, and these students returned to Indonesia after completing internships in Atlanta and around the U.S. Six of the graduates - four from the first year program and two from the second year program - remain in the U.S. in order to further their studies at AYSPS and complete their Ph.D.s. The goal of this cooperative agreement with USAID-Indonesia has been to bring 55 Indonesian university and government workers to Georgia State University in order to earn masters degrees in economic policy. The school is applying its nationally recognized expertise in public finance research and economics instruction in this one-year program designed to improve the capabilities of Indonesia's outer-lying districts and local governments, as the country moves rapidly to decentralize its fiscal operations. The program is co-directed by James Alm and Jorge Martinez-Vazquez. (2001-2003, $3,000,000)

Peace Corps. Georgia State University has a close working relationship with the Regional Peace Corps Office in Atlanta. This relationship has been enhanced with the Proposal for a Peace Corps Master's International Program for a Masters of Economics, Masters of Economics-Policy Track, and Masters of Public Administration, a partnership between the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies and the Peace Corps. Within the Andrew Young School, students would be able to obtain a masters degree within the Department of Economics or the Department of Public Administration and Urban Studies.

Each student will work closely with an academic advisor to exploit the synergy potential between classroom work, field experience, thesis research, directed readings, and internships, including overseas assignments.

The students will receive financial aid for their program of study. The AYSPS holds seven tuition waivers that allow out-of-state students to pay in-state tuition ($125 per credit hour for in-state versus $501 for out-of-state). These waivers are assigned to students based on criteria set by the College. Additionally, Masters students often receive assistantships that waive tuition and also provide a small stipend. The Peace Corps candidates are eligible and will compete for these waivers.

Fiscal Policy Summer Training Program 2003. The International Studies Program conducted an eight-week Fiscal Policy Summer Training Program. The training program, consisting of two three-week courses ("Tax Policy, Fiscal Analysis and Revenue Forecasting" and "Fiscal Decentralization and Local Governance") as well as a two-week course ("Public Budgeting and Fiscal Management"), was designed by economics faculty from the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies and took place on the GSU campus in Atlanta, Ga. Senior government officials and donor agency representatives from Serbia, Uganda, Indonesia, China, Nepal, Kenya, Macedonia, and others attended the program. Training included intensive classroom sessions featuring lectures, fiscal policy analysis and simulations, case studies, group discussions, country-specific individual projects and field visits to relevant government offices such as the DeKalb County Tax Assessors office and the office of the Budgetary Responsibility Oversight Committee. This is a tuition-based program ($300,000) and has been successfully conducted every summer since Summer 2000.

Jameson Boex managed numerous facets of the Fiscal Policy Summer Training Courses. He coordinated and taught "Fiscal Decentralization and Local Governance." Mark Rider coordinated and taught the courses on "Budgeting and Fiscal Management" and "Tax Analysis and Revenue Forecasting" during Summer 2003. Faculty throughout the school lectured during each course, including James Alm, Roy Bahl, Kelly Edmiston, Jorge Martinez-Vazquez, Benjamin P. Scafidi, David L. Sjoquist, Mary Beth Walker, and Katherine Willoughby. Ross Rubenstein, Dr. Premchand, Serdar Yilmaz and Roger Shotton gave guest lectures.

An Academic Partnership in Support of Sound Public Policy in the West Bank and Gaza. The ISP established a comprehensive partnership with the Center for Studies, Consultations and Technical Services (CSCTS) at An-Najah National University (ANNU), in Nablus, West Bank, in 2001 and 2002. The program ended in September 2003.

The overarching objective of the partnership was to achieve more responsive and accountable government in the Palestinian territories by building human capacity in academia, government, and civil society through education and training. Instead of merely proposing an exchange of faculty or students, this partnership developed a truly integrated partnership, with joint activities in academic development, applied research, and outreach and training. Specifically, the partnership aimed to enhance the academic and outreach capacities of ANNU in the field of public policy; build a strong and enduring relationship between ANNU and AYSPS; encourage sound policy reforms; and jointly engage in direct outreach activities (technical assistance, applied research and training activities) that will result in more responsive and accountable government. Tanzania. In Tanzania this year, Jameson Boex, Roy Bahl and Jorge Martinez-Vazquez have continued working on the “Development of a System for Allocating Grants to Local Government Authorities in Tanzania” study. The ISP is providing technical assistance based on a solid understanding of transfer design issues and the particular situation in Tanzania. The objective of the study is to analyze the shortcomings of the present system of intergovernmental transfers and propose equitable and transparent options for allocating grants to local government authorities in Tanzania. Boex, Martinez and Bahl have been working with the Indonesian Government and technical experts to achieve this objective. Danish International Development Agency (DANIDA). This project is currently ongoing. ($201,209)

Uganda. A five-day workshop was delivered from October 13-17, 2003, by the Andrew Young School on the campus of the Uganda Management Institute (UMI) in Kampala, Uganda. The purpose of the workshop was to provide a refresher program for LGFC experts who previously attended the Andrew Young School’s decentralization training programs in Atlanta. The training workshop was attended by eight participants. The program combined a number of review sessions with a number of applied sessions focusing specifically on local government finance issues in Uganda. Local governments in Uganda play an important role in the delivery of important government services. The delivery of key social services, such as education, health care, water, local roads, gender, and agriculture are delivered at the local government level. In addition, local governments play an important role in the planning and implementation of local capital development programs. ($25,728)

Jamaica. The Jamaican Government has recently awarded the International Studies Program at the Andrew Young School of Policy the task to conduct a comprehensive review of its tax structure. Jamaica has not undertaken a review of such proportions in nearly 20 years. Dean Roy Bahl was instrumental in acquiring this grant and giving ISP-AYSPS the opportunity to lead this endeavor. The AYSPS team consists of Roy Bahl, Sally Wallace, James Alm, David Sjoquist, Mark Rider and Kelly Edmiston. They will visit Jamaica several times over the course of the next year to compile a thorough and comprehensive review of the Jamaican tax structure. The results of this review will be utilized by the Government of Jamaica and the Tax Reform Committee to develop a blueprint for the ultimate reform process. ($966,499)

Russia World Bank. The AYSPS continues to be involved in the “Development of Federal and Regional Legislation on Inter-Budgetary Relations and Sub-Federal Finances” study in the Russian federation. The Andrew Young School of Policy Studies teamed up with the Institute for the Economy in Transition and the Fiscal Policy Center to build on its considerable experience as one of primary technical assistance provider to the Russian government in the area of fiscal decentralization and intergovernmental fiscal relations. Jorge Martinez-Vazquez and Jameson Boex traveled to the Russian Federation in May to continue providing technical assistance and advice. A study tour on Fiscal Federalism for Russian Intergovernmental Relations Experts was conducted during December 2003. The project provides technical assistance to the Russian Federation Ministry of Finance and is funded by a loan from the World Bank.

The project's overall aim is to increase the effectiveness of regional and local government bodies in promoting economic development and providing public services. Achievement of this objective requires solution of two related problems: (1) supporting the development and implementation of rational and responsible financial and economic policies by regional and local government bodies; and (2) increasing the financial, institutional, and organizational capacity of regional and local authorities to develop and implement effective budget policies and financial management reforms. Martinez and Boex will continue to offer their expertise in this matter. ($473,750)

Russia, Summary of Report Outputs Completed during 2003 for the Russia World Bank Project include:

Report #7	Subnational Government Civil Service: Salary Structure and Hiring Decisions , January 2003
Report #8	The Role of Sub-national Treasuries: International Experience , October 2003. The main purpose of this report is to provide an overview of the international experience in the design of treasury systems at the sub-national level to inform the process of further budgetary reform in the Russian Federation. The new Budget Code of the Russian Federation dedicates some articles to defining the role of the sub-national treasuries and the new system that is emerging is a marked improvement over past practices, but some problems remain.
Report #9	Budget Reporting, October 2003
Report #10	Decentralized Decision Making at the Subnational Level: International Experience and Its Relevance to Russia's Decentralization Process, November 2003
Report #11	An Assessment of the Proposed Sub-Federal Fiscal Reforms in the Russian Federation (The Kozak Commission), December 2003

Russian Federation USAID Project. The ISP continues to be a subcontractor to Deloitte and Touche Tohmatsu on the USAID-sponsored Fiscal Decentralization Project. Under this project, the ISP provides technical experience to the Russian Center for Fiscal Policy as it continues its role as primary U.S. technical assistance provider to the Russian government in the area of fiscal decentralization and intergovernmental fiscal relations. Through the Russian Center for Fiscal Policy, the ISP continues to work with the Russian Ministry of Finance, the State Duma, and regional governments to increase the efficiency and equity of the system of intergovernmental fiscal relations in the Russian Federation. Jorge Martinez-Vazquez and Jameson Boex have been providing continual advice and reports on these policy issues. ($225,000)

Indonesia Decentralization. In order to provide technical support to the decentralization process in Indonesia, USAID/Jakarta awarded a Task Order to a combined GSU-PADCO Team under the Sustainable Urban Management (SUM) IQC. The overall objective of the Task Order is to support successful implementation of decentralization reforms in Indonesia. The GSU-PADCO team will support these reforms by: (a) monitoring the status of decentralization reform on a quarterly basis; (b) proposing activities to improve the structure and coordination in intergovernmental relations; (c) engaging in policy analysis; (d) providing support for parliamentary strengthening whenever appropriate; and (e) supporting the nascent network of policy experts within Indonesia's regional universities.

The ISP is concluding contract negotiations for a $300,000 contract through the SUM Indefinite Quantity Contract with PADCO to provide technical advisory services in the area of fiscal decentralization to the government of Indonesia. USAID-Indonesia.

Indonesia, Development of Intergovernmental Fiscal Review. During September 2003, Mark Rider conducted a one-week training program for 12 staff members of Indonesia's Ministry of Finance in Jakarta, Indonesia. The training program was financed through the World Bank established in support of Indonesia's decentralization process and institutions.

The purpose of the training course was to familiarize MOF staff with data analysis techniques and tools as well as providing them with on hands-on experience to develop an Intergovernmental Fiscal Review (IGFR). The course was specifically designed to assist with the preparation of the IGFR, but also benefited the MOF in its general role of monitoring and managing Indonesia's fiscal decentralization process.

The IGFR is expected to strengthen transparency and accountability by enabling Parliamentarians, legislators, government officials, non-governmental organizations and civil society to monitor and analyze regional budgets. It will also help compare expenditure and revenue performance across regions, creating incentives for sub-national governments to become more responsive to their citizens' needs. The IGFR will also be a tool by which the Government regularly monitors and evaluates its fiscal decentralization program. ($15,832)

Fiscal Reform in Support of Trade Liberalization worldwide. In July 2003, the United States Agency for International Development's Office of Economic Growth, Agriculture and Trade (EGAT) initiated the Fiscal Reform in Support of Trade Liberalization worldwide program (known as The Fiscal Reform Project). Implemented by a consortium of Development Alternatives Inc. (DAI), BIDE and Georgia State University, the program has core funding from EGAT/EG and will respond to requests from USAID operating units to provide training, assessments, in-house expertise, and technical assistance in all areas related to fiscal reform and to fiscal aspects of trade liberalization.

As an integral part of The Fiscal Reform Project's activities, ISP will annually develop and deliver a week-long training program on a relevant fiscal policy issue. The first annual training program, Fiscal Policy Reform: Principles and Trends, is a customized training program developed by the International Studies Program that exposes USAID officials to the principles and recent trends in fiscal policy reform, tax policy design, tax administration, budget policy, public expenditure management and fiscal decentralization. This topic-driven course will consist of lectures, seminars, and roundtable discussions. ($372,287)

Swaziland Intergovernmental Fiscal Transfers. The ISP was awarded a contract from the Ministry of Finance of Swaziland to conduct a study that will assist the Government in establishing a system for the allocation and transfer of revenue from the central government to local authorities in a predictable and timely manner that will foster efficient service provision. As part of the initiative to make local authorities more effective in service delivery and accountable to their constituencies, it is essential to match responsibilities with financial capability within the provisions of clear and binding performance measures to ensure value for money and compliance to legal requirements. Therefore, it is crucial that an analysis of an appropriate system of intergovernmental transfers put in place.

As a result, the principal objective of the study is to assist the Government in establishing a system for the allocation intergovernmental fiscal transfers from the central government to local authorities in a predictable and timely manner that fosters efficient service provision at the local government level. The study further proposes improvements in the regulatory and budgetary framework for local governments, local financial management and accounting reforms, as well as a re-orientation of the coordinating role of the Department of Urban Government within Ministry of Housing and Urban Development. ($76,778)

Decentralization Training Workshop and Technical Assistance to the Local Bodies Fiscal Commission in Nepal. The ISP is organizing a training workshop to take place in Nepal in January 2004 combined with a follow up on technical support mission to the Local Bodies Fiscal Commission (LBFC). The workshop will aim to sensitize the high level officials in the line ministries and other key government decentralization stakeholders (NPC, MoF, MLD), to build capacity of the LBFC Secretariat and other stakeholders to conduct the studies outlined in the LBFC Road Map, and to prepare some of the participants for the UNCDF/DFDP and Dasu Danida supported study tour on fiscal decentralization and local governance to Denmark and Uganda in February 2004. The technical support mission that will take place after the workshop will provide technical advice to LBFC to finalize the district level allocation formula and discuss with LBFC the forthcoming fiscal gap analysis including the elaboration of a VDC allocation formula and equalization formula.

African Public Policy Leadership Exchange: Building African Leadership for Good Governance and Sustainable Development (APPLE). This initiative proposed to USAID will strengthen public policy management and leadership capacity in Sub-Saharan Africa. APPLE's core will be the Andrew Young African Fellows Program (AYAFP), comprising two two-year joint Master's Degree Programs (a Masters in Applied Economics and a Masters in Public Administration) which are specially designed and tailored to the needs of African participants. Participants will attend one year at an Africa partner institution and the other at the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies at Georgia State University. APPLE will build the capacity of participants to return to their home countries as policy analysts and policy advisors; as a result, the program will be focused on subjects and policy issues important to Sub-Saharan Africa. Graduates of the program will enhance the policy analysis capability of the public sector, universities, non-governmental organizations and think tanks in their respective countries. It is anticipated that programs will be established with up to eight English-speaking countries, many of which the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies is already engaged. ($13,000,000)

South Africa Municipal Financial Management Technical Assistance Project. The ISP responded to the National Treasury of the Republic of South Africa's search for advisory services from individuals and consulting firms to contribute towards the unfinished financial management reform agenda for the municipal/sub-national sector in South Africa. The National Treasury aims to draw upon global expertise and international best practices to design the policies that will provide an appropriate operating environment within the structural framework created for South Africa's municipalities. It expects to retain and mobilize this expertise through an Indefinite Delivery Contract of up to three years.

Study on Fiscal and Human Resource Decentralization in Lesotho. The ISP proposed a study to the government of Lesotho suggesting equitable and transparent options for allocating grants to local government authorities in Lesotho. In addition, the team will develop a comprehensive Human Resource Plan for the new local government system in Lesotho, which will identify the minimum human resource requirements for each local council to ensure that local government services are delivered in accordance with the Local Government Act. The ISP will guide the Government of Lesotho in improving the system of local finances and developing a new intergovernmental fiscal transfer mechanism.

Montenegro Good Local Governance Project (GLG). This three-year project focuses its resources and expected outcomes on implementation of the full framework of radically new local government laws in all 21 municipalities of Montenegro. Through its participation in this project, ISP will focus on increasing better-informed citizen participation in political and economic decision-making in local governance. The concentration will be on services delivery founded on effective interaction between local governments and their citizens and citizen organizations. The intended outcomes of this project are to improve capacity of municipal governments to manage and finance professional, accountable and representative local governance on the basis of enacted republic laws and regulations; to increase citizen awareness of local government reforms and productive participation in transparent local government processes; and to tangibly improve the delivery of public administrative and communal services at the municipal scale, initially those of water/waste water management.

Building Capacity for Decentralized Financing and Deliveries of Services in Vietnam: Development and Implementation of a System of Intergovernmental Grants. Based on a solid understanding of transfer design issues and the particular situation in Vietnam, the ISP proposed to the Government of Vietnam this technical assistance project in order to offer support by analyzing the shortcomings of the present system of intergovernmental grants, developing equitable and transparent options for allocating grants to local governments in Vietnam, and guiding the implementation of the proposed reforms.

Current Indefinite Quantity Contracts (IQC)

The ISP is a member of several USAID Indefinite Quantity Contract (IQC) consortia. These contracts give USAID quick and easy way to contract out advisory services to the ISP.

Strategic Policy and Institutional Reform (SPIR) IQC, Development Alternatives, Inc. (DAI). This IQC provides services to support strategic policy and institutional reform that strengthens accountability, transparency, and effectiveness. The contract is designed to assist host country institutions and organizations and USAID in addressing policy and institutional reform issues through democratic processes. The contract addresses the frequently fatal gap between broad policy pronouncements and the tough challenges of effective institutional reform. Through the SPIR IQC, the DAI/AYSPS team can assist with programs that cut across a variety of sectors and across governance subsectors, for example, fiscal decentralization reform, local government reform, legislative strengthening, and anti-corruption in the public sector.

Sustainable Urban Management (SUM) IQC, PADCO Consortium. The SUM IQC provides advisory services, technical assistance, and training in support of USAID's goal of well-managed urbanization, and the Environment Center's strategic support objective of improved management of urbanization in targeted areas. Managed by the Office of Environment and Urban Programs, the SUM IQC delivers services in these four functional areas: expanded and equitable delivery of urban services and shelter; more effective, responsive and accountable local governments; reduced urban pollution; and credit program monitoring.

Fiscal Reform and Development in the ENI Region IQC, Deloitte Touche Tohmatsu Consortium. At a time when governments in emerging economies and donor agencies must achieve greater results with fewer resources, proven consulting ability is essential to cost-effective, successful development efforts. Working in partnership with donors, governments, enterprises and local communities, the International Studies Program and Deloitte's Emerging Markets Group have achieved positive results on technical assistance projects around the world.

Support for Economic Growth and Institutional Reform Macro- II (SEGIR- II) Financial Services IQC, Development Alternatives, Inc. (DAI). The International Studies Program is providing support to Development Alternatives, Inc. (DAI) on a Support for Economic Growth and Institutional Reform (SEGIR) Project in furtherance of USAID's goal of helping countries achieve broad-based economic growth on a sustainable basis. The ISP will be aiding in macroeconomic policy, poverty alleviation and economic institutions and analysis.

Fiscal Reform in Support of Trade Liberalization (FRTP), SEGIR EP IQC. The International Studies Program will be enabling USAID to better address fiscal issues that arise in developing countries — especially those linked to the process of trade liberalization through this IQC. ISP will facilitate access by missions to specialized fiscal expertise and training resources, particularly identifying opportunities for fiscal reform and specific implementation activities and improve technical competence on fiscal issues among AID staff. Furthermore, ISP aims to strengthen USAID's understanding of the many fiscal issues that confront developing and transition countries, especially as they relate to trade liberalization.

Visiting Scholars

Cintia Martinez, from the University of Santiago De Compostela, Spain, was at AYSPS from September 2003 until December 2003. She worked with Jorge Martinez-Vazquez, Neven Valev and Felix Rioja.

Dr. Benno Torgler is visiting from the University of Basel, Switzerland, from September 2003 until August 2004. He will be collaborating with AYSPS faculty members on research regarding tax morale and tax compliance.

Jan Werner was visiting from Johann Wolfgang Goethe-Universitat, Frankfurt am Main, Germany, during September 2003. Jan was researching the financing of local authorities in Germany, as well as future fiscal reforms and methods of resolution in Europe.

Wu Xue was a Visiting Scholar from the Ministry of Finance of China from November 2002 to November 2003. The focus of her research was on tax assignment and tax reform. She is a senior editor for the Fiscal Science Research Institute of the Ministry of Finance of China.

Neighborhood Collaborative - The Atlanta Project (TAP)

Georgia State University transferred The Atlanta Project (TAP) into the university family as a means of enhancing research, teaching, and service through more effective partnerships with its urban environment and neighborhoods. Former president Jimmy Carter established TAP in 1992 as part of The Carter Center where it operated until August 1, 1999, at which time it was transferred to GSU. TAP was the first step in the development of a university-wide unit called The Neighborhood Collaborative. The collaborative assists in implementing the GSU commitment to working in partnership with the community to improve the lives of Atlanta residents. Its goals are: 1) to build community capacity, 2) to focus additional research, teaching and service on community capacity building and improved social policy and programs, and 3) to improve access to human services for families and children, especially in low-income neighborhoods. Douglas Greenwell is the Director of the Neighborhood Collaborative and The Atlanta Project.

During 2003, the Neighborhood Collaborative has been successful in engaging the university and community in partnerships, especially those relating to the senior population. In addition, students have been recruited and employed as GRA, Learn and Serve, Work Study and student assistants.

Projects

Senior Corps Programs. Corporation for National Service. Since January 2002, The Neighborhood Collaborative has operated three grants from the Corporation for National Service to administer three senior corps programs: Foster Grandparents, Senior Companions, and Retired Senior Volunteer Program. The Senior Corps programs recruit, place, and train volunteers ages 55 years and older in volunteer positions within the community. The programs operate in Clayton, Cobb, DeKalb, Fulton and Gwinnett counties. Ten employees are joined by one student employee and one Graduate Research Assistant to carry out this exciting program with more than 1470 senior volunteers. Twenty-five of these Senior Volunteers have answered President Bush's call to service by providing over 4,000 hours of service to their community and will be receiving The President's Volunteer Service Award in May 2004.

Foster Grandparent Program is funded through the Corporation for National Service as a senior initiative through which people 60 years of age and older provide a service to young children with exceptional or special needs. By providing assistance in schools, hospitals, detention centers and day care centers, Foster Grandparents often provide services that limited staff can not. The volunteers who meet income guidelines receive a stipend ($2.65 per hour) for the work completed. Foster Grandparent volunteers serve 290 children and their families. In 2003, 123 Foster Grandparents provided service at 14 different educational settings within Fulton and DeKalb counties. Of these 123 volunteers, 21 seniors have been volunteering for 5 years, seven seniors have been volunteering for 10 years, two seniors have been volunteering for 15 years, two seniors have been volunteering for 18 years, and one senior Foster Grandparent has been volunteering in this program for 19 years. The annual federal grant is $629,759.

Senior Companion Program is funded through the Corporation for National Service. The Senior Companion Program is a senior initiative through which people 60 years and older provide assistance and friendship to elderly individuals who are homebound and, generally, living alone. Senior Companions provide the services that frail elderly persons need to live independently. The volunteers who meet income guidelines receive a stipend ($2.65 per hour) for the work completed. Senior Companions volunteers served 149 fragile seniors and their families. In 2003, 42 Senior Companions provided service at six different service agencies within Fulton and DeKalb counties. Of these 42 volunteers, 12 seniors have been volunteering for 5 years. The annual federal grant is $300,942.

Retired Senior Volunteer Program is funded through the Corporation for National Service. The Retired Senior Volunteer Program invites adults, age 55 and older, to use their experience and skills to assist communities in need. RSVP volunteers serve in various capacities such as mentoring, companionship, administrative, Meals on Wheels, advocacy, tour guides, neighborhood watch, and more. The RSVP program serves five Metro Atlanta counties: Clayton, Cobb, DeKalb, Fulton and Gwinnett. The RSVP program in DeKalb County serves as the official source for senior volunteers in the county. A total of 516 new volunteers were recruited and placed during 2003 for a grand total of 1300 volunteers. The annual grant is $288,641.

Senior Corps Matching Funds. Each of the three senior volunteer programs requires matching funds. The agencies in which volunteers are working provide both cash and in-kind resources to support the program finding. Local county governments also provide grants to support the programs. The United Way of Metropolitan Atlanta and other charitable organizations provide additional dollars. These sources generate approximately $275,000 annually.

Family Friends Program is funded through the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Administration on Aging. The goal of the program is to match senior volunteers with families who have children with special needs, including disabilities and chronic illnesses. Volunteers help the child as well as the entire family find solutions to the many problems they face. This program was closed in November 2003. One of the agencies that was a partner and member of the Advisory Board agreed to take the lead in continuing to work with the several partner agencies and seek funding to keep the program operational. Many of the services will be continued for the children and their families while the program is being revised under new leadership. The annual federal grant is $74,600 plus additional funds of approximately $25,000.

City of Atlanta Weed and Seed Program. TAP was commissioned to provide an evaluation of the Weed and Seed Program implementation. The Weed and Seed Steering Committee is co-chaired by the Mayor of Atlanta and United States Attorney William Duffey. The project goal is to maintain and strengthen the combined efforts of law enforcement, residents and community agencies to weed out drug abuse and establish drug prevention strategies. For more than three years, TAP has been the external evaluator to measure the results of the Weed and Seed goals and objectives. Partners in the program include the Federal Drug Enforcement agencies, the City Law Enforcement agencies, Atlanta Public Schools, Atlanta Housing Authority, MARTA and a host of community service providers. Residents from Mechanicsville, Pittsburgh and Vine City neighborhoods provide direction as to priorities and participation from these three neighborhoods that are the program's target communities.

Atlanta Community Access Coalition. The Atlanta Project facilitated the development of a coalition of community health providers and linked them with a social service network for the purpose of increasing access to health care for the uninsured and underinsured. This coalition successfully competed for Federal funding assistance to implement the revised system for cooperation in bringing health care to a population with little or no access to care. The coalition includes Grady Hospital, Fulton Department of Health and Wellness, Westend Medical Center, Southside Medical Center, Oakhurst Medical Center, St. Joseph Mercy Medical Center, Morehouse School of Medicine, Emory School of Public Health, The Atlanta Project and the Pathways Network. TAP has contracted for Geographical Information Services and Evaluation for the past three years.

Community Outreach and Partnership Center is funded through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. This is a partnership comprised of the Georgia Institute of Technology, GSU, Community Design Center of Atlanta, Inc., SUMMECH, Inc., Mechanicsville Civic Association and the resident association of McDaniel Glenn. There are multiple projects to assist in community development, including architectural design, human services and economic development. We placed GSU undergraduate student interns at SUMMECH (1) and Mechanicsville Civic Association (1) to expand staff capacities as well as provide a meaningful learning experience for the Georgia State University students. The grant provides $150,000 over two years and was completed in October 2003.

Volunteer Income Tax Assistance and Earned Income Tax Credit project was implemented by the Atlanta Fulton Family Connection coalition of which the Neighborhood Collaborative is a member. The project provided free income tax preparation to families with limited income. In addition, the project promoted the Earned Income Tax Credit available to working families with children and low income. The NC took this project to the Atlanta Outreach Consortium (Clark-Atlanta U, Emory U, Georgia Tech and GSU) for sponsorship in recruiting volunteer faculty and students to support the VITA tax preparation. The AOC adopted the project and the NC managed the recruiting and training of approximately 40 volunteers.

Americorps VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America). The Neighborhood Collaborative in partnership with the Office of Community Outreach and Partnership continues to sponsor VISTA volunteers in their yearlong service requirement. Three new VISTA volunteers were placed at the Neighborhood Collaborative. The VISTAs are involved with the community capacity building efforts of the Neighborhood Collaborative, developing public relations, and expanding existing projects such as Family Friends and Senior Corps. One VISTA volunteer successfully completed her yearlong service experience in June and two more completed their service in November.

Fatherhood Service Center did not have specific funding during 2003, but information and referral services were provided to non-custodial parents who came to seek assistance. The Dunbar Neighborhood Office manager and a student from the GSU College of Law fielded telephone inquiries and met with walk-in clients to assist with legal information and access to non-punitive, constructive avenues for skills training, assisted job search, and employment in order to meet their financial responsibilities and establish nurturing relationships with their children.

The Atlanta Project continues to focus on building capacity in the urban neighborhoods and works to facilitate partnerships between the residents and the resources they need to carry out their plans for their neighborhoods and their families. Two of the primary tools for this work are:

Data and Policy Analysis. The Atlanta Project established this unit in 1993 through a contract with a Georgia Institute of Technology professor. Staff and students are hired to produce vital geographic and statistical data that can be extracted by address throughout the urban geographic area. TAP has developed a philosophy and practice of assisting community groups in understanding both the value and the ways in which data supports planning and implementation of change. The concept of Democratization of Data is the goal of this activity.

Carter Collaboration Center. This computer lab has 30 workstations, software for training, access to the Internet and the Group System V software to assist group planning and decision-making. Groups from various neighborhoods, local non-profits, the United Way, GSU, as well as the Atlanta City and the Federal governments have utilized this resource during 2003. Specialized training for volunteers to staff the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance program was conducted in the lab.

COMMUNITY CAPACITY BUILDING

The Neighborhood Collaborative Community Capacity Building activities are headquartered at City Hall East. Our offices around the metro Atlanta area include: Atlanta/Fulton Neighborhood Office (Dunbar Neighborhood Center), Gwinnett County, Cobb County, and Clayton County. These offices enhance our Community Capacity Building, with activities such as the following:

- Recruited, trained, and placed 100 senior volunteers into Senior Corps Programs to volunteer in the community.
- Senior Corps volunteers participated in Mayor's Walk and the Mayor's Ball in Summer 2003.
- Hosted five Senior Corps recognitions and four special events for senior volunteers. An average of 100 people attended each event. The events supported the collegial relationship between the volunteers as well as recognized the outstanding work they accomplished.
- Organized donation of old cell phones to Riverdale Police Force. The cell phones were converted to emergency phones for seniors.
- RSVP volunteers in DeKalb and Cobb counties quilted baby blankets, sweaters, and booties. The gifts were sent to an AIDS/HIV orphanage in Swaziland.
- Created a Georgia State University Hands On Atlanta team, which included four staff members from the Neighborhood Collaborative and five GSU students. Volunteers participated in Hands On Atlanta Day events at the Salvation Army.

- Sponsored four GSU service-learning students from the Office of Community Outreach and Partnership. The students are involved in recruiting volunteers, creating our Web site, and evaluating community programs.
- Gwinnett County RSVP participated in the Holiday Helper Program sponsored by GUIDE. The volunteers gathered items to fill over 246 bags to be distributed to children in need throughout the county. The bags contained not only toys but also essential items like clothing and hygiene products. GUIDE distributed over 3,000 bags this year to seniors, adults and children.
- Gwinnett County has been involved in Senior Day Out and the Senior Health Fair. Several displays are located in senior centers, residential facilities and a grocery stores throughout the county.
- Gwinnett County placed volunteers in the Georgia Cares program, a horse farm that provides therapy for autistic children and a work center for the mentally disabled.
- Fulton County has volunteers involved in two literacy programs at Antoine Grove High Rise and Wheat Street Towers.
- Fulton County Martel Housing Tenants Association is involved in Community Development.

Nonprofit Studies Program

The Nonprofit Studies Program (NSP) was organized in 2001 to foster collaborative research on the nonprofit sector within the academic community, to promote policy research that is relevant in today's political and economic environment, and to serve as a link between scholars and nonprofit practitioners in creating and disseminating knowledge about the sector. By coordinating intellectual resources, it seeks to develop a better understanding of how the sector works. Through rigorous policy analysis, it strives to find ways to harness the unique advantages of the sector for the public good. Through the development and dissemination of "best practices", it hopes to improve management tools and practices for more effective operations of nonprofit organizations.

Research interests and expertise among nonprofit studies program faculty and associates cover a broad range of topics, including: organizational management systems and strategies, public-private partnerships, public policy regarding nonprofits, philanthropy and the formation of social capital, as well as tax policy and alternative government funding arrangements. During 2003, the NSP was engaged in several funded research projects, participated in several conferences and community forums, and sponsored its third annual nonprofit executive leadership roundtable.

Projects

Trends Over Time in Social Capital and Philanthropy, by David M. Van Slyke and Janet L. Johnson.

This study, sponsored by the Community Foundation of Greater Atlanta, involved quarterly surveys of households in Metropolitan Atlanta for the period January 2002-January 2003. Building on two previous studies conducted by the Andrew Young School, one a study of individual philanthropy and the other a study of patterns of social capital, this study analyzed how Metro Atlanta's giving, volunteering, and social capital have been affected by the September 11th tragedies and the recent downturn in the economy. It also provided a look at quarterly trends in philanthropy, a topic about which there is little known to date. The final report was issued May 2003.

Public Funding of the Arts - Study for the Greater Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, by Michael J.

Rushton. This study focused on options for a dedicated tax-based source of funding for arts organizations in metro Atlanta, and provided important input for discussions and deliberations of the Metro Atlanta Chamber of Commerce Task Force on the Arts. Teresha Freckleton-Petite served as research assistant on the project. The final report of this study was released October 2003 by Research Atlanta. Rushton's other research projects include the implications of cultural diversity on public funding of the arts, the political oversight of arm's length arts funding agencies, and the introduction of performance measures in nonprofit arts organizations.

African American Philanthropy, by David M. Van Slyke, Janet L. Johnson, and Shena Ashley. This study, begun in fall 2003, utilizes available surveys of metro Atlantans which have been sponsored by the Community Foundation of Greater Atlanta to study the methods, patterns and motivations for charitable giving and volunteering of African Americans. The study expects to analyze such questions as: How do the patterns of formal giving and volunteering differ for African Americans relative to other racial and ethnic groups? To what causes do African Americans give and volunteer? What motivates African Americans to give and volunteer? What factors inhibit their giving and volunteering? A final report of findings is expected in spring 2004.

Reports

Tracking Trends: Giving, Volunteering and Trust in Metro Atlanta (final report). Janet L. Johnson and David M. Van Slyke. Commissioned by The Community Foundation for Greater Atlanta. May 2003.

Sustainable Funding for the Arts: Earmarked Taxes and Options for Metropolitan Atlanta. Michael J. Rushton. Commissioned by Research Atlanta with funding by SunTrust. October 2003.

Activities

2003 Nonprofit Executive Leadership Roundtable. The Nonprofit Studies Program held its third annual Nonprofit Executive Roundtable on May 6, 2003. Over 50 community nonprofit leaders and scholars met to discuss some of the latest analysis of the sector, and to reflect on how to use this knowledge to shape the future of the sector. Michael Rushton of the Nonprofit Studies Program served as Master of Ceremonies for the event, and John O’Kane, SVP at Coxe, Curry & Associates and a NSP Affiliated Program Fellow, facilitated the Roundtable discussion that followed the presentations.

The Roundtable’s featured speaker was Dr. Lester Salamon, Professor at Johns Hopkins University and Director of the Center for Civil Society Studies. Salamon is a leading expert on nonprofit-governmental relations, viewing the two sectors as partners in public service. He elaborated on his latest book, The State of Nonprofit America (2002), and led a discussion of how the latest concepts in nonprofit sector development could be relevant to the Atlanta community.

David Van Slyke and Janet Johnson of the Nonprofit Studies Program presented the final results of a study sponsored by the Community Foundation for Greater Atlanta on giving, volunteering and trust among metro Atlantans. This study was introduced at last year’s roundtable, where first quarter 2002 survey data were compared to previous survey data collected prior to the September 11th tragedy. The fifth and final quarter of the survey was completed during the first quarter of 2003, and the final analysis reflected a total of over 2,400 interviews over a period of 15 months.

In addition, the Nonprofit Studies Program hosted an academic seminar given by Salamon following the Roundtable program. Salamon spoke to an audience of approximately 50 faculty and students on the topic: “The Tools of Government: A Guide to New Governance.”

Program for Rehabilitation Leadership

The Program for Rehabilitation Leadership (PRL) provides human resource development and organizational development services to public and not-for-profit organizations providing employment services to individuals with disabilities. The Program is funded through federal cooperative agreements as well as various state and local contracts. PRL activities include on-campus and field-based training and education, technical assistance, and action research. PRL is nationally recognized for exemplary practices in human resource development and organizational development. 2003 marks the 25th anniversary of the Program for Rehabilitation Leadership at Georgia State University. Deon Locklin served as Director of the Program for Rehabilitation Leadership in 2003.

Projects

The Regional Continuing Education Program for Community Rehabilitation Providers (CRP-RCEP). Deon Locklin, Project Director. The CRP-RCEP is designed to address the broad range of learning needs shared by non-profit community rehabilitation organizations throughout the eight southeastern states. Begun in 1997, the CRP-RCEP is funded by the U.S. Department of Education, Rehabilitation Services Administration, to provide learning services to over 700 community rehabilitation programs and independent living centers in the region. Each of these organizations provides employment-related services and supports to individuals with disabilities. The CRP-RCEP is a partnership of the Program for Rehabilitation Leadership at Georgia State University and the Center on Disability and Employment at the University of Tennessee.

The Regional Rehabilitation Continuing Education Program for Administration & Management (RRCEP-A&M). Deon Locklin, Project Director. Cooperative agreement with U.S. Department of Education. The RRCEP-A&M was established in 1978 in order to meet the recurring learning needs of supervisory, managerial, and administrative personnel in state vocational rehabilitation agencies in the eight states of federal Region IV. The RRCEP-A&M has evolved into an on-demand, rapid response, continuing education and technical assistance project serving state rehabilitation leaders. In addition, the RRCEP-A&M provides technical assistance to affiliated RRCEP programs around the nation in the areas of organizational development and human resource development.

Consortium for Distance Education in Rehabilitation (CDER), in collaboration with San Diego State University and the University of North Texas. Sally Siewert, Project Director. The Program for Rehabilitation Leadership at Georgia State University, the University of North Texas, and San Diego State University received continued funding in 2003 from the U.S. Department of Education Rehabilitation Services Administration, to provide M.S. degrees in Rehabilitation Counseling to currently employed professionals in the field, allowing them to meet current standards in federal legislation for rehabilitation providers. The degree program is conducted using distance learning technologies, and includes cohorts of 50 counselors from throughout the nation. Twenty-nine students from throughout the Southeast graduated in 2003 with master's degrees in Rehabilitation Counseling.

Region IV Employer Outreach Project. Sally Siewert, Project Manager. The Program for Rehabilitation Leadership continues to support the ongoing effort of the Region IV Employment Partner's Team, which includes representatives from state vocational rehabilitation agencies throughout the southeast. The Employer Outreach Project, a specific curriculum development initiative of the Region IV Employer Partners Team, was completed in 2003.

Region IV Recruitment Initiative, Chip Kenney, Project Manager. State vocational rehabilitation agencies face severe personnel shortages due to massive retirements within the field. To address the personnel preparation, recruitment, and retention needs within the public program, the U.S. Department of Education, Rehabilitation Services Administration, implemented a strategic initiative in 2003. The Program for Rehabilitation Leadership plays a key role in implementing this initiative in the southeast.

Research Atlanta

Research Atlanta is a private not-for-profit public policy research organization that studies public policy issues affecting the metropolitan Atlanta region. It represents a unique collaboration between the private sector, which supports the research and sets the research agenda, and the Georgia State University Andrew Young School of Policy Studies, which administers to the organization and oversees the research process. For 32 years, Research Atlanta, Inc. has investigated the causes of and analyzed the alternative solutions to problems that affect the quality of life in metro Atlanta. Research Atlanta advances sound public policy, not a political agenda. Deborah McCarty is the executive director of Research Atlanta.

Research Atlanta enjoyed yet another successful year in 2003. The two major studies released this year generated significant discussion among citizens and key leaders about issues as diverse as open space and the arts. Research Atlanta reports explore the issues and details and offer a panoply of options to consider when crafting policy responses. Research Atlanta was contacted by various nonprofits and interest groups about conducting a record number of client studies in 2003, many of which may be forthcoming in 2004.

Sound public policy requires more than simply informed policy makers. It also demands an informed citizenry engaged in the debate about the issues. To engage citizens in such debate, Research Atlanta maintains an extensive Web site, provides technical assistance and education to community groups and collaborates with other organizations to present special programs. In 2003, Research Atlanta posted information from its reports and continued to use a search engine on its Web site to make it easier for individuals to educate themselves about community problems.

Research Atlanta took steps to reach out to the community by partnering with SunTrust to host an Arts Forum to discuss the study released in September 2003. Over 50 people attended the event, which was held at SunTrust in downtown Atlanta. In attendance were board members, community leaders, and representatives from the arts community from the entire metro Atlanta area. The highlights of the event were the panel members, which included Raymond King, Alicia Philipp, Paul Blackney, Bill Nigut, Michael Rushton and Andrew Feiler. The success of the event was evident in press coverage and interest in the community.

In 2003, Research Atlanta participated in activities around the country. Executive Director Deborah McCarty attended the ARC LINK trip to San Francisco with key Atlanta business leaders. McCarty also serves as a member of Mayor Shirley Franklin's City of Atlanta Parks Commission.

The initiative was made in 2003 to help found the Metropolitan Atlanta Mayors Association (MAMA) in partnership with the Regional Leadership Forum (RLF), the Georgia Municipal Association (GMA), and the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies (AYSPS). Research Atlanta helped organize the initial event in December 2002 and several follow-up events in 2003, including the reception at GMA in June 2003. Research Atlanta's Executive Director McCarty has been invited to participate in all the Executive Committee meetings of the MAMA organization. Research Atlanta helped facilitate GMA's commitment to housing staff on an ongoing basis with the MAMA group, and Research Atlanta plans to be available for their research needs.

Research Atlanta originated on the premise that an informed citizenry engaged in serious debate about the problems affecting their community is essential for good public policy decisions. More than a "think tank," Research Atlanta engages the public in the kind of discussion needed to resolve issues. In partnership with WABE, Georgia Public Television, Leadership Atlanta, the League of Women Voters of Atlanta-Fulton County, Regional Leadership Forum, and the Atlanta History Center, Research Atlanta has taken steps to plan forums and communication with the public to transmit the data analysis to the community. Past forums have addressed regional decision-making, private management of public schools, the impending water crisis, air quality, and attracting the middle class back to the central city.

Research Atlanta has a wealth of information available on its Web site at www.researchatlanta.org. Reports include metro Atlanta issues as diverse as city services, air quality, public service delivery, governance, public finance, education, housing, and poverty. Particularly valuable reports for today's policy debates include Developing a Comprehensive State Water Management Plan, What is Social Capital and Why does it Matter?, Promoting Parental Involvement in Middle School, Models of Regional Decision Making, Barriers to Education Change, and Is It Better for Michael and Maya? The Research Atlanta city services best practices study, released in 2001, is still being requested and reviewed by the community.

Research Atlanta's work consistently receives excellent media attention. The Atlanta Business Chronicle released full supplements of the open space and arts study executive summaries to tie in with the release of the full reports by Research Atlanta. Prominent news reporters such as Maria Saporta and Tom Sabulis of the Atlanta Journal-Constitution and Wendy Bowman-Littler of the Atlanta Business Chronicle are regular attendees of Research Atlanta events. Research Atlanta has strengthened its relationship with the Atlanta Journal-Constitution, the Atlanta Business Chronicle and WABE in 2003 in many areas including press releases, press coverage, forum attendees, and report releases.

In the 2003 Annual Corporate Fundraising Campaign, Research Atlanta raised $113,325. Research Atlanta also received several in-kind contributions in 2003, including gifts of time and effort such as McKinsey assisting with strategic planning and fundraising planning, Graham Windsor Group with meeting facilitation and development, and Georgia Pacific with the redesign of the Research Atlanta Web site.

Outreach and Technical Support

State and Community Service

Outreach is an essential part of the mission of the Andrew Young School. Faculty, research associates and graduate students were heavily involved in Georgia and in the Atlanta region, in all manner of ways. We developed and implemented training programs, carried out applied research projects, spoke at public and private meetings, worked directly with government officials in evaluation of policy options, and served on boards of non-profit agencies. We tried to help make better policy in our state, and believe we added value in many areas. The following listing shows the very great breadth of our state and community service.

Information Center

In support of continuing research projects, the Andrew Young School information center provides to the college faculty and researchers some 1,500 volumes, with about 45 current subscriptions including newsletters, working papers, journals, yearbooks and directories in economics and fiscal policy. Many items are gifts from faculty. In the past year about 1,200 publications and conference announcements were circulated to faculty and graduate research assistants, with 10 percent of the items kept in-house. The information center's role is to collect, catalog and make available relevant literature and electronic resources. We work with the college faculty and their research assistants to help them access and interpret the ever-changing information databases. We have access to Web sites, journals and data sets in such areas as public finance, economics, domestic and international policy studies, especially taxation and revenue issues.

The information center's catalog of resources on DBTextworks lists almost 4,000 records of subscriptions, government documents, books, CDs and data sets for AYSPS researchers. This catalog is now accessible via Internet connection through the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies Web site, with journal holdings and data sets listed. Gardner Neely manages the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies Library/Information Center.

This year, new data CDs and annual books that were added include the following:

- World Bank Africa Database 2004
- IMF International Financial Statistics
- IMF Government Finance Statistics
- Global Development Finance 2003 from World Bank
- European Tax Handbook of International Bureau of Fiscal Documentation
- Corporate and Individual Taxes 2003-2004: Worldwide Summaries
- The 2003 Georgia County Guide CD from the University of Georgia
- Regional Economic Information System from the Bureau of Economic Analysis
- State Legislative Sourcebook 2004
- OECD Revenue Statistics available from SourceOECD
- State and Local Taxation: 2001 CD by Oldman & Pomp

Online sources from the University System of Georgia's Galileo service and GSU funded research databases provide access to electronic journals through the University Library's Web site. A timesaving feature on this site is FSX, an indexed list of on-campus accessible journals. One can click directly into the full-text article, if it is contracted by Pullen Library or Galileo. Abstracts and full text from such titles as Journal of Applied Econometrics and Journal of Policy Analysis and Management are downloadable for those that register from an on-campus computer.

The Information Center has coordinated with LaLoria Konata, the liaison in policy studies, to gain access to relevant literature via selected Web subscriptions. PolicyFile, a Web-based abstracting service, covers a wide range of public policy research that draws its content from policy think tanks, university research programs and research organizations. Electronic journals are more easily accessible via the Web. Among these is JSTOR, which allows access to back issues from different publishers, including, for example, Oxford University Press and Wiley InterScience. Web of Science, from ISI's Social Science Citation Index, allows users to track the citation process of academic papers. From Oxford University Press, users can print articles from such periodicals as Journal of African Economies, Economic Inquiry, Oxford Economic Papers, and the Journal of International Economic Law.

On Galileo, users have access to highly specialized academic literature through ProQuest and Ebsco. Both of these now allow users to e-mail articles found through their search engines. Lexis -Nexis has added a statistical search engine, which allows searching of abstracts and table names of governmental data sources. On Galileo, selected databases now have an export feature, allowing users to e-mail plain text or HTML records to a Web-based e-mail address, or to export citations and abstracts to a bibliographic manager, such as EndNote.

Galileo also has selected databases, such as OCLC FirstSearch, which have character settings for non-English text, including Spanish, French, and several Asian languages.

Georgia archives are being added on the menu of Galileo's interface to serve scholars in search of state history sources including the Civil War and civil rights history in Georgia. GeorgiaNet gives links to state agencies, councils and commissions, maintained by many state agencies, including the Georgia Department of Revenue.

Major literature services such as Ingenta and Factiva (formerly called Dow Jones Interactive) have large libraries of full text journals and abstracts in most academic disciplines. Ingenta provides both document delivery of a large catalog of journal articles on demand, as well as table of contents service e-mailed to users by their selection of journals.

The Information Center Web site features international tax literature links, pertinent publishers, suppliers and data centers, and links to the university library's menu.

The university online catalog, called GIL (Galileo Interconnected Libraries), allows users to search the university libraries catalog, to search by format, to indicate the status of a checked-out book, and to renew it, to find a stored journal, as well as to send e-mails with citations via Web-based e-mail. These improvements have proven very successful with traveling faculty on assignment overseas in developing countries and elsewhere.

The Information Center provides orientation to economic, public administration, and social science literature sources available at the information center and the university libraries. Services to visiting scholars and international students are provided in coordination with LaLoria Konata at the University Library.

Advancement

Development Highlights

The Faculty / Staff Annual Giving Campaign

Georgia State University faculty and staff are committed to the University and its mission. This is demonstrated in many ways, but none more than the level of support given to the Annual Fund. Last year, 87% of the university's faculty and staff were contributors. In the Andrew Young School, more than 90% of our faculty and staff gave to the university.

Most colleges and universities report faculty and staff giving in the 40-45% range. Despite severe budget cuts and static salaries, Georgia State's faculty and staff continue to raise the bar each year.

	Percentage of Faculty and Staff Giving
	FY00	FY01	FY02	FY03
AYSPS	87.0%	85.54%	95.6%	90.1%
GSU overall	75.0%	77.25%	83.0%	87.0%

The State Charitable Giving Campaign

Each fall, Georgia State University participates in the State Charitable Giving Campaign. This campaign helps to fund a number of non-profit agencies that provide service to communities across the state of Georgia. Donors can select from a number of options for allocating their gifts. In 2003, the Andrew Young School exceeded 90% in staff and faculty giving to this important campaign.

Fundraising in 2003

We continue to reach out to our alumni, donors, supporters and the community at large through a variety of mediums. The Briefing, our college newsletter, continues to be widely read and praised for its content and quality. Through The Briefing, we are reconnecting with alumni interested in the Andrew Young School and its growing reputation. This year, we also hosted a number of special events, including the Coca-Cola Student Leadership Conference and the Non-Profit Roundtable. These events introduce our college and our programs to individuals throughout the community. The Human Resource Development Alumni Club continues to be active and growing.

Fundraising in 2003

The year 2003 was another disappointing year economically, although improvements were seen in the last quarter of the year. We continue to receive gifts from alumni and donors.

Efforts to reach and connect with our alumni base are beginning to show results. Each year we see increased contributions to the Annual Fund from our alumni, as well as from our faculty and staff. We know this means that our programs have relevance and are valued by our graduates.

Corporate and Foundation Giving

In addition to alumni and faculty/staff support for our programs, we receive funding from the corporate community as well. Among these corporate donors are United Parcel Service, The Coca-Cola Company, Coca-Cola Enterprises, Bank of America and Delta Air Lines.

Public Relations Highlights

The primary goal of the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies' public relations office is to create and maintain a favorable environment for student and faculty recruitment, private giving and public funding by raising awareness of the college and its accomplishments among essential elements and constituencies. The office advocates the use of planned and purposeful marketing communication ideas, strategies and tactics. Ronni French coordinates media relations activities for the college.

In a unique position to provide expert perspective on a myriad of issues, the Andrew Young School of Policy Studies has become a central resource for the news media.

The school combines news media research, existing faculty-and-media relationships, and persistent media outreach to produce news coverage and media placements in a variety of publications and broadcast outlets. In particular, the School has sought and achieved strong visibility in the Atlanta Journal-Constitution, the hometown daily newspaper whose influence drives much of Metro Atlanta and North Georgia's media decisions. Editors and reporters increasingly seek the views and opinions of Andrew Young School faculty; in fact, op-ed columns authored by school experts now appear regularly in local newspapers, and editorial board members solicit information from the School that frequently is included in daily editorials.

News topics range widely. That is the nature of the Andrew Young School. In 2003, faculty views and commentary were featured frequently in stories about: threats to Georgia's health care programs for children... the widely-observed controversy regarding Georgia's state flag and its Confederate battle emblem... foreign-born scientists in the United States and potential risks associated with their presence here... and the deepening problems of uninsured Georgians, especially those in rural areas of the state.

Early in 2003, an Andrew Young School study that examined racial segregation in Georgia public schools generated extensive local and national news coverage, beginning with an in-depth Associated Press story and subsequent coverage in more than 70 newspapers and numerous education advocacy Web sites. Other studies that garnered media interest focused on: alternative funding programs for the arts in large cities... the progress and viability of Georgia's popular HOPE Scholarship program... and recommendations on improving open space and parkland acquisition in Metro Atlanta.

The school's economists regularly work with editors and reporters to provide important perspective, and with the national economy languishing throughout much of 2003, their opinions on sales tax declines and the weak convention and tourism industries strengthened media coverage locally and statewide. The Andrew Young School also conducted a study on how Georgia's tax breaks have widened budget gaps in state government – the study was featured in a lengthy, front-page story in the Atlanta Journal-Constitution.

Another key component of the school's visibility efforts is The Briefing, the widely-acclaimed quarterly newsletter that is a must-read for economists and public policy leaders around the country. Each edition examines how the Andrew Young School makes a difference in the lives of its students, its community, and its fields of study and research. The Briefing also provides updates on faculty, students and staff, bringing to life the dynamic academic environment that exists in the school and showcasing the achievements and accolades the school's family consistently enjoys. The publication's annual highlight is the Research Issue, which features the school's important research activities and describes their relevance to today's policy world.

Editors and reporters also are recipients and readers of The Briefing, which is posted on the school's Web site along with a collection of story ideas and information on faculty experts.

Media “Hits”

Journalists from dozens of local, regional, national and international publications and broadcast outlets call on the Andrew Young School’s faculty experts each week for information and commentary on breaking news stories and features. In 2003, researchers and data from the Andrew Young School were featured in about 156 stories. The college encourages its faculty – as employees of a taxpayer-funded research university – to make themselves and their work available to the public through these news outlets. The list below represents a sampling of the year’s major media hits.

The Andrew Young School of Policy Studies. A 2002 Andrew Young School study which found that per capita social services’ spending in Georgia has declined over the past 10 years, even while state revenues rose and other government programs expanded, was cited in an op-ed declaring the state can’t afford to cut family planning programs, Atlanta Journal-Constitution, October 23, 2003. A 1999 study on roads was cited in the editorial, “Roads to rural Georgia paved with bad intentions,” Atlanta Journal-Constitution, September 17, 2003.
